Bennett Due In Court

Premier Bennett will appear in court Thursday to face preliminary examination in a slander suit brought against him by G. E. P. Jones, former B.C. purchasing agent.

The pre-trial examination for discovery will be conducted in private by Tom Berger, counsel for Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones launched the suit against the premier in Vancouver Supreme Court last March. The tentative date for trial there is Dec. 29.

In July, Mr. Jones filed a statement of claim in which he alleged that Mr. Bennett slandered him during a Social Credit Association meeting in Victoria on March 5. Mr. Jones was removed from the office of purchasing commission chairman on March 26.

U.S. Jets Hit Launch Pad

Missile Sites Blasted

'Control' Office Bombed

VIENTIANE (UPI)—North Viet Nam charged Monday U.S. jets bombed the offices of the International Control Commission and the New China News Agency in the Laotian town of Khang Khay Saturday.

Trust Companies 'Invited Catastrophe'

TORONTO (CP)—Trust companies were invited a "national catastrophe" when they refused to help British Mortgage and Trust Co. out of its financial troubles last summer, Harold Lawson, former caretaker president of British Mortgage, said Monday.

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Air Force jets blasted two Soviet-made missile sites northwest of Hanoi Monday, hitting one missile while it was still on the launching pad, a military spokesman announced.

SITE DESTROYED

One of the missile sites, 34 miles northwest of Hanoi, was destroyed, the spokesman said. A huge sheet of fire flashed across the site where the missile was hit by the launching pad.

At the other installation, 41 miles northwest of the North Vietnamese capital, radar equipment was destroyed.

The surface-to-air missile sites were the 16th and 17th struck by U.S. planes since July. The spokesman said the pilots encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, but returned safely.

During Work Hours Thursday

UNIONISTS CALLED TO MASS MEETING

By BARRY JOHNSON

A mass meeting of all trade unionists—during normal working hours—has been called by a general strike co-ordinating committee of the Victoria Labor Council.

The plan to call the meeting was formulated at a meeting of the committee Monday at Union Centre.

It calls for all Greater Victoria trade unionists to attend a mass meeting beginning at 9 a.m. Thursday, the day marking the beginning of the 48-hour strike being urged by the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Committee chairman John Schibli, organizing chairman of the labor council and a member of the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union, said the meeting is to "explain the issues involved in the oil strike."

When it was suggested that if workers were at the meeting, they would not be at their jobs, Mr. Schibli said, "That is the inference."

The mass walkout in support of Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' fight for protection against layoffs due to automation, has been denounced as illegal by government and industry leaders.

The federation has had mixed success in its promotion of the mass walkout. Some unions have said they will not support the strike, several are known to be wavering and many are still undeclared.

The 11,000-member B.C. Teamsters Council said it has decided "not to participate in any illegal strike action."

At the same time, the union declared it would not "haul, handle or use" any petroleum products, thereby assuring stoppage of all major trucking in the province if the strike materializes.

Victoria Local 1-118 of the International Woodworkers of America said it would support the strike. "Either we stand idly by and watch an affiliated union be destroyed... or we take a stand."

"We stand on the side of the oil workers."

Sentencing Today

Robinson Admits Slaying

By GORDON DODD

David Leonard Robinson answered "guilty" Monday when asked how he pleaded to a charge of non-capital murder at Victoria Assizes, thus ending the prospects of a two-week trial for which 56 Crown witnesses had been assembled.

The nude, bound body of schoolgirl Susan Freschi, 14, was found in bush country behind the Six Mile House beer parlor May 12.

PANEL DISMISSED

Mr. Justice George Gregory dismissed the 44-member jury panel after the plea of guilty was entered and adjourned the trial until 11 a.m. today at the request of Crown prosecutor William McIntyre.

Mr. McIntyre will relate the circumstances of the case and Alan Bigelow will appear for Robinson, after which Mr. Justice Gregory is expected to pass sentence.

LESSER CHARGE

The 24-year-old janitor had been committed for trial on a charge of capital murder, which carries the death penalty, but only the lesser charge was read to him Monday as he stood smartly attired in a suit, white shirt and dark tie in the prisoner's box behind counsel Alan Bigelow.

Robinson, a married man, had been in custody for the killing since May 26, with the exception of two days of freedom at the end of September. Then, he and 19-year-old fellow prisoner Stanley Heron escaped from Colquitz Jail.

FLED JAIL

A key was smuggled into the jail, enabling the two men to flee through a padlocked fire escape.

As a result, a big-scale search was mounted, extending to the mainland, before the dirty, dishevelled twosome were trapped late on the third night of their escape under Craigflower Bridge.

Robinson got four months for escaping, Heron nine months. That was on Sept. 25.

Now it is the events that sparked that earlier manhunt

Janitor Fourth in Canada To Plead Guilty to Murder

It is a rare event in Canada for a man to plead guilty to murder, giving up his right to trial.

David Leonard Robinson's admission at the outset of his assize appearance was only the fourth time in Canadian history such a plea had been taken, the third in B.C., according to Cecil Clark, former commissioner of B.C. police and local author of many articles on criminal history.

Normally, an automatic plea of not guilty is entered and a jury is called upon to decide the issue.

Mr. Clark says the first time a man pleaded guilty to the charge in Canada was at the turn of this century. A Chinese, Yip Luck, confessed to the axe-slaying of Steveston Chief of Police Charles Main, and was hanged.

In fact, he narrowly escaped lynching, Mr. Clark recalls.

The public were so angered by what he had done to their police chief, who had been merely inquiring about some stolen carpenter's tools, that Yip Luck had to be whisked from his prison on Lulu Island to New Westminster.

Sixty-five-year-old Arthur Cunningham was also hanged. In 1952, he pleaded guilty at his trial to shooting dead a 72-year-old pensioner in a shack at Endako, 100 miles west of Prince George, for the sake of a small monetary gain.

Cunningham's victim was found shot in the back and frozen stiff outside the shack. Cunningham had previously been suspected of murder at Jasper, but on that occasion the court could not find sufficient evidence to convict him.

Mr. Clark says the other case, where a plea of guilty was entered to murder, was in Ontario around 1935.

The charge of non-capital murder, which does not carry the death penalty, was not in existence at the time any of these pieces of criminal history occurred. Thus Robinson is the first in Canada to plead guilty to it.

B.C. Village For Sale

100 MILE HOUSE (CP)—Lord Martin Cecil, the only man in British Columbia to own an entire village, has put it up for sale.

Lord Cecil, 56, has offered to sell 100 Mile House in the B.C. Cariboo to its leaseholders.

There were reports the leaseholders thought the asking prices were too high. Lord Cecil said in an interview Sunday they were set by professional appraisers on the basis of current market values.

Lord Cecil's family has owned the square mile on which the village of 1,200 stands since 1912, when his father, the Marquis of Exeter, bought it.

Lord Cecil lives at 100 Mile House, where he is bishop of a religious organization called the Order of Emissaries of the Divine Light. 100 Mile House is 180 miles north-northeast of Vancouver.

Lord Cecil said Monday he agreed years ago to sell the village to its inhabitants once 100 Mile House was incorporated under the B.C. Municipal Act. It was so incorporated this year.

Cabinet Changes Not Coming For Two Weeks

OTTAWA (CP)—No cabinet changes will be announced for at least two or three weeks, Prime Minister Pearson said Monday.

But he told a press conference the changes, when completed, will be "fairly extensive" and indicated they might include appointment of a second senator to cabinet rank.

Mr. Pearson who met reporters during a lunch break in an all-day cabinet meeting, said he planned a special meeting with Justice Minister Lucien Cardin

Hall Talks Ended

OTTAWA (CP)—The corridor meetings of prime minister and press, an Ottawa practice that began about 15 years ago and at times built up to awesome proportions, formally ended Monday.

Prime Minister Pearson left a regular cabinet meeting on the second floor of Parliament Hill's East Block and walked the 100 feet to his office along an empty corridor.

As promised, a conference room on the first floor was opened for reporters to await the end of the cabinet session. Mr. Pearson went there right after the meeting and answered questions for about 20 minutes.

West Expects France to Quit NATO

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The prospect that France under Charles de Gaulle may withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in 1968 has become accepted in high places in the Western community. But some experts still adhere to the view that while the French axe may cut a hole, it will not destroy the 15-country alliance.

Secret contingency planning, based on the assumption that France will withdraw and that the Paris headquarters and other French-linked NATO elements may have to be moved elsewhere, has in fact been under study for some time.

West Germany has been clamoring for greater "involvement" in the actual operations of Western nuclear strategy, or, more particularly, in the operations of the United States nuclear force which makes up about 85 per cent of the overall Western nuclear power.

The smaller NATO members, concerned that U.S. policy might involve them in an unwanted nuclear war, have been seeking U.S. assurances that they will be consulted in advance, before the U.S. ever pulls the nuclear trigger.

In line with the increasing importance of this dual problem, 10 of the NATO defence ministers will meet in Paris Saturday to see how far they can go in accepting a U.S. proposal for greater Allied participation and consultation in nuclear planning.

Their decision will not be final. All they will do is prepare an interim report to be put before the NATO foreign ministers in Paris in mid-December and it is understood that the foreign ministers will review the issue but make no attempt to reach a final decision this year.

The issue may then be carried over to 1968, along with parallel discussions on whether NATO should adopt the U.S.-proposed multilateral, mixed-manned seaborn Polaris nuclear force which would have only a few mixed-manned elements.

There have been reports that Britain would prefer to shelve all talk of a NATO nuclear force in favor of securing an agreement with the Soviet Union to ban the dissemination of nuclear weapons.

Groups Try Power Bid

By ROBERT REERLIZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Two small bands of conspirators tried to seize control of towns near Santiago Monday and both were swatted down by armed forces and police.

In Temboril, 85 miles north of Santo Domingo and eight miles east of Santiago, rightists captured a radio station and proclaimed a revolutionary government.

Seven armed men held municipal authorities of the town of Jarabacoa prisoners for about an hour before police arrived. The seven rebels surrendered without incident and were transferred to Santo Domingo. Jarabacoa is 30 miles south of Santiago.

NO SHOTS

The rebels in Temboril proclaimed Dr. Tomas Alcibiades Espinosa Acosta, a Santo Domingo conservative, as president. He was among those arrested. Most of the band was captured without a shot fired but some got away and are being pursued, a communique said.

It appeared the actions were intended to wrest control of the central part of the country from the provisional government of president Hector Garcia Godoy.

PLOT UNFOLDED

The Temboril plot unfolded this way:

At 3 a.m. the plotters captured Temboril's radio station. They proclaimed a "democratic revolutionary government" with Espinosa Acosta as president. He is a leader of the conservative National Civic Union. They held the station for more than two hours. But by 5:30 a.m. the army had the situation completely in hand, said Commodore Francisco J. Rivera Caminero, armed forces secretary.

An announcement by Garcia Godoy said 28 persons had been arrested. Rivera Caminero put the number at 47 and said no members of the armed forces were involved. The president said an investigation would be Only Nature can make a tree.

But Man can build a forest.

The timberlands we manage will yield

40% more wood than Nature's ever did.

Take our ten-year forestry program. In logged and thinly treed areas, we'll be planting forty million new seedlings. In crowded spots, we'll thin the trees to provide space for faster growth. (The thinnings? They'll be used too: sold to world markets as pulp and paper.) And as always, we'll be waging the endless war against the enemies of the forest. Preventing fire, controlling insects and disease. The lands we manage under this intensive program are growing up to 40% more wood per acre than Nature's forests. Growing it faster, too—by as much as ten years. Unselfish? Hardly. We hope to be harvesting and marketing our products when your children and theirs are looking to the forest industry for their livelihood. Let's say it's just good business. Fate of the Nation

CANADA, SAYS the London Times' Ottawa correspondent, is looking for a leader of the stature of the late John F. Kennedy, but no one of that stature is yet in sight.

It is very often the case that a person on the outside looking in can appraise trends and tendencies in a nation better than those closely involved. It may well be that the Times' correspondent is perfectly correct; that perhaps unconsciously Canadians are yearning for a leadership apparently lacking.

Many Canadians will admit to the feeling that a certain poverty has been indicated in our political leadership, not only today but through the years since Confederation. There have been dominant figures, admirable men in public affairs, yes; but the truly national figures have been few and far between.

If we search our consciences we will be constrained to acknowledge a sense of helplessness, and a suspicion that we are drifting, rather than progressing according to a clear-cut plan towards definite goals of nationhood.

It follows, then, that we do not possess the spirit of a people inspired by high purpose. That inspiration, even in a community of potential greatness, can come only from strong leadership. We need a man of dynamic quality, with courage, integrity and vision, and with an understanding of the needs of the people, to wear this mantle. We require a man who will rally our loyalty, our faith and our determination if we are to grow in national stature, or even preserve our nationhood.

It is too easy to live complacently, enjoying the comforts derived from the wealth of our natural resources, content to accept dependency upon neighbors for the capital to develop them, intent only upon achieving the security of the welfare state, without considering the cost to individual independence and ambition.

Richard Needham, writing in the Toronto Globe and Mail, discusses the undirected course of events in this country, and reaches a disturbing conclusion: "that Canada will not long endure as a nation; that having begun its existence as a colony of France, then of Britain, it is now to all intents a colony of the United States."

In time, he says—perhaps sooner, perhaps later—Canada will become part of that wealthy, powerful and expensive nation.

Reluctantly it must be admitted he advances sound arguments to support his belief. But that does not make such an eventually either acceptable or attractive.

His prediction, widely enough circulated, just might have the effect of arousing Canadians to the point where they will take a long, hard look at themselves, stiffen their determination to survive as an independent entity, and stimulate the pride that is so necessary an attribute of character.

This country has most of the ingredients out of which greatness is fashioned. Its physical resources need no enumeration. It is the spiritual resources which are in question. For their resuscitation and preservation we need the leadership of a true loyalist and a rekindling, by his example, of a spirit once extolled—a vibrant patriotism.

Fight Against Fees

REPRESENTATIVES of the student body at the University of Victoria plan to carry to the board of governors certain demands which, they feel, may have the effect of preventing further increases in tuition fees.

They have been encouraged by the support they received in an undergraduate vote which favored withholding of $56 of their second-term fees until March 11, which is very close to the end of the university year.

However, although they report that 85.1 per cent voted yes to the question of whether they favored withholding fees as an indication of dissatisfaction with rising tuition costs, an analysis of the poll shows they are far from unanimity. In the first place only 1,670 students voted. That is just over 56 per cent of the student body. It must be assumed that besides the 15 per cent who voted against the withholding move, another 45 per cent were realistic enough to appreciate that the advances of tuition fees in recent years are not excessive in the light of the services and amenities offered, that in any event they are beyond the control of the board of governors, and that they do not imply any wish to exploit those in search of learning.

In 1923-24 tuition fees at little Victoria College, then located in Craigheroch, where there were neither playing fields, gymnasium, auditorium, or any of the score of other advantages the present campus possesses, were $75. For those days, related to the general wage scale and the cost of living, this was a substantial sum.

By the 1954-55 university year fees had risen to $170, by 1960-61 to $340. And last year they were up to $428. Students anticipate a further rise this year unless the weight of their present campaign can sway the government to more generous assistance.

They plan to ask the board of governors to allow them to be represented when estimates are being discussed with the government and the amount of university grants determined, and they want an announcement of fees before March 11. Last year, they complain, fees were not announced until after final examinations and most students had gone home.

The students agree the board of governors is in no way to blame for the rising costs of tuition. But they feel it is only through this body that they can achieve the desired impact for their arguments.

Some of them are saying that if they don't succeed in checking the rising fees they will take strike action. Presumably that means they will quit their classes. It is entirely possible that unless their fees are paid they will be obliged to quit their classes whether they like it or not.

Everyone will sympathize with the undergraduate who, working his way, has trouble making ends meet. To him the cost of tuition is an undeniable difficulty. But there are sources of assistance. And education, like any other commodity, bears a price tag.

It may be that in the future this disagreeable factor will be removed. In the meantime tuition fees represent a very small portion of the aggregate of the cost of education. It is the taxpayer who pays the big bill.

One may feel that, by and large, university students are getting a good bargain, in spite of the belief in some quarters that they have earned the rewards of higher learning without further cost in cash to themselves.

Ottawa Offbeat

MPs in Form to Raise the Commons' Roof

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

SO all right, go ahead—call the election a miserable rerun of the same dreary old stand-off, all a great big dun-colored drag, a slab of boredom 3,000 miles wide, a yawn lasting two months.

But say this for it, too — it produced a revival of the fine old-fashioned art of full-blown political oratory that now may survive even the deadening influence of the House of Commons.

Up until the politicians started hitting the hustings in all but annual "revivals" of the great campaign show, the technique of talking off the top of the head from the public platform had been pretty well lost in the electronic shuffle.

Years of leaning on the artificial strength of the transistor and the false authority of the microphone — which together transformed the weakest and most uncertain voice into a veritable trumpet — seemed to have muted the vocal chorus of most of the political performers. But those nine weeks of stumping up and down the land, often in places where electronics either weren't always available or entirely dependable, have given the orators new self-confidence in their lung-power.

They've got muscles on the muscles of their larynx now. And when they move back into the Commons, the amplifiers of the public address system will have to be tuned down to a lullaby level or the vocal athletes will be blowing the roof off Parliament's sturdy old stone Centre Block.

Most sensationally loud of the platform performers is Reel Caouette who, single-handed, salvaged nine Creditaires from whatever it was happened to all hands, even the vaunted Liberals, in Quebec.

Man, as they say, Caouette is real—real fortissimo.

With gestures, looking for all the world like some human cross between a farm windmill and a rig pumping oil.

And get a load of that Donnie Macdonald, the Tory pride of Cape Breton and the "athlete" of those oratorical marathons in the Commons.

He's got a nifty change of stance and pace.

There's what could best be described as "the measure"—hands outstretched as if he was selling fabric by the yard or boasting about the size of that fish.

Then he has "the crouch," looking for all the world like a big league ball catcher ramming his fist into an imaginary mitt.

He has a nice turn of "body English" too, leaning a full 90 degrees sometimes, seeming about to take off, straight from the floor of the Commons, in an oratorical jackknife dive.

All the while you can hear him in the back top rows of the galleries and likely clear on down the hall to the Senate, with the Liberal frontbencher flinching back as if in the face of a roaring tornado.

And praise be to the good electors of York West—bushful Bob Winters is back with that absolutely gorgeous New England accent, exuberantly rich in its pear-shaped, soft-rounded tones of Boston and M.I.T. culture.

Winters is the only talker in Parliament who can make himself heard for 20 blocks around while seeming to be carrying on a quiet drawing-room conversation.

With lucky old us again is George Hees, the "engineer," as they used to call him, of the House.

When he's purring along, full throttle, he reaches up for what wouldn't really be anything else but an invisible whistle cord, yanks down on it with four or five mighty blasts on the imaginary diesel horn.

And look what the campaign's done for the "Quiet Man," Prime Minister Pearson, who always used to speak as if it were private.

Now, better stand well back, for he has learned to talk from his toes and can shake the fronts off the potted palms.

The autumn roadwork has polished the Diefenbaker style to a high, hard shine! He leans into his audience, leers, winks, eye-rolls, shrugs, all eloquently. He chuckles, cackles, snorts, snarls, grunts like a prize porker and bass fit to shame a ram.

Dig Dief's Quebec deputy, Theogene Ricard—what an explosion! He works at a high boil, actually steaming. Yep, the orators are coming back after fall training on the campaign trail, in sensational shape, and should be able to rock the roof of the new minority Parliament—as if it's going to need any rocking!

For Greater Flying Safety

Experts Seek the Source of Failures

By ANDREW WILSON from London

INTERNATIONAL efforts to improve air safety are to be intensified. The recent spate of crashes has given the experts' action added impetus.

A full account of work going on to discover and rectify crash causes is given in a paper by G. G. Stallbrass, director of flight safety at the British ministry of aviation, in the latest issue of the Journal of the Society of Licensed Aircraft Engineers and Technologists.

Continuing faults of aircraft design mentioned by Mr. Stallbrass are instrument displays and badly placed switches which can mislead pilots under stress. Another is the fallibility of automatic equipment.

"The auto-pilot can disengage so gently that it is nearly a minute before someone notices that the nose and one wing have gone down" and that the aircraft is quickly increasing speed, he says.

As for automatic landing, electronic devices will be checked by electronic devices, but it will need a man to check that one device is continuing to check another device.

There are also human failings to be eliminated. "A washer left off a joint can cause an oil leak, leading to an engine shutdown. An incorrect deck assembly can produce a fire warning in the hydraulics bay, and a rushed emergency landing."

Mr. Stallbrass goes on to note that reversed electrical connections could produce an instrument fault that could bring about a crash. He also refers to weaknesses in the training of aircrews, especially by some airlines, whose procedure puts an unequal load on the captain and co-pilot during approach and landing.

"Without a proper division of duties on the flight deck to lighten the peak load, the sort of accident we should have stopped having long ago will go on happening as they have been doing." (This does not, of course, refer to airlines, like British European Airways, who carry a third pilot.)

Among intensive efforts to eliminate accident causes, Mr. Stallbrass mentions current work on the problems of slush holding back aircraft at take-off and on the danger of turbulence.

Under a ministry of aviation program, flight recorders have been used to analyze thousands of hours of flying of BOAC Comets and Boeing 707s; they are now being fitted to some Trident and VC-10s. Intensive work is also being done by BOAC and BEA safety committees and a pooled organization of the independent airlines.

At the RAF Institute of Aviation Medicine, a physiologist and a psychologist are studying the dangers of aircrew fatigue.

Studies are also proceeding into any possible relationship between pre-takeoff delays and subsequent accidents, and accidents occurring soon after take-off at night or in poor visibility.

Mr. Stallbrass says that the British safety record is one of the world's best. Over the five years ending at the beginning of October the death rate per 100 million passenger miles was only 0.41. But unless there are continuing improvements the vast increase in passenger flying can produce an alarming number of tragedies.

Mr. Stallbrass pleads that "as new information, techniques and equipment become available, they should not be rejected until public outcry, following an accident, forces the old apparatus to be replaced."

Living in Doubt

Must the people of Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head live in constant doubt and fear about the status of their district and their property? Again a petition is circulating to get property rezoned for high-rises — and again to fence the university in with prison-walls of concrete and close off its view across the sea. This time the "benefactors" of our district are running about in a California car.

"Timeo Danaos et dona ferentes"—remember? Isn't it admirable of our American neighbors to be so concerned for the welfare of those living in one of Victoria's loveliest, and quietest residential areas! They will lower our taxes for us, I suppose. It is to be hoped nobody will be duped—high-rise investors are interested in only one thing: their own financial gain.

Let no one in Cadboro Bay or Gordon Head be foolish enough to sign any petition! Who will pay for new road access? for increased school needs? for new water mains required? for sewers? for new lighting? Certainly not the great humanitarian high-rise promoters.

Let one high-rise appear on Cadboro Bay hillside—anywhere—and our residential area will be gone in 10 years. Proof of this fact is abundantly evident in the West End English Bay area of Vancouver or on West Vancouver waterfront. Is this the kind of university district we want? Compare the UBC campus and its surrounding beauty—a boast of Western Canada. The University of Victoria can be its equal. It is to be hoped the university board of governors with wisdom and foresight will fight high-rise development in their district to its extinction.

The citizens of Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head are relying also on the members of Saanich council to protect their homes and privacy once again, as they did two years ago. We trust they will not break faith with us.

Now it is time to go farther. The residents of Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head must have some guarantee of future security. A university district planning commission must be set up without delay by Saanich council, the university and the provincial government, to control development and planning of the entire area from Gordon Head Road and Cedar Hill Crossroad to the sea. Such a move, it seems, can be our only guarantee of freedom from threat by real estate exploiters. Let us get rid of the high-rise promoters for once and for all time.

Property owners do not particularly object to tourists getting this additional asset when visiting our evergreen wonderland playground — tourists are here for such a short time—but they do feel that something enjoyed the year around should be paid for.

Realizing that the only way for municipalities to raise money in B.C. is through property tax, owners of property cannot understand why the minister has not already directed that municipal councils put an additional referendum before them on Dec. 11, along with the hospital referendum. It's the only safe way to do it. If another cent was put on the sales tax it might wind up, along with the last two cents imposed some years ago, somewhere else.

There is one small difficulty. Property owners who vote for "Crofton additive" will also be voting for the hospital referendum, putting hospital costs on the land, and special arrangements will have to be made to record their votes. They are likely to already be in hospital, in the psychiatric wards.

Helpful Plan

Citizens in Regina, aged 70 years and over, can apply for a pass to ride on a city bus seven days a week, any line they choose—no restrictions. At one time they were not permitted to ride during rush hours from 4 to 6 p.m.; however, that regulation does not apply any more. They have free use of all bus routes. A pass costs $5 per annum.

They must produce a photograph taken without a hat. This picture is attached to the bus pass. This is really a treat for us to be able to visit parks and new shopping centres.

Would it be possible to make a similar arrangement for the senior citizens in Victoria?

Cranes Lift Exports

Celebrating its 50th anniversary this month is an engineering firm which has lifted Britain to top place in world sales of medium-sized mobile cranes.

The firm is K & L Steelfounders and Engineers, Ltd., of Letchworth, Herts., which started during the First World War by making steel castings, and diversified some ten years later into crane manufacturing, using its own castings.

Recently a dozen cranes left the London docks from the Letchworth testing ground, including 20- to 30-ton mobile cranes, with 130-foot jibs, for overseas customers. Others have gone to trade fairs in Europe. In all, cranes from this British firm have been shown at some 16 trade fairs this year.

At a recent Barcelona fair 550,000 worth were sold in a few days, and within a period of three months cranes have been shipped to Aden, Chile, Cuba, Denmark, the Irish Republic, Finland, France, Germany, Ghana, Greece, India, Italy, Jamaica, Mauritius, Norway, Peru, Portugal, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Trinidad, U.S.S.R., Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

In fact, they are sold to 120 different countries; and instruction notices, manuals and literature are printed in 14 different languages, including Chinese, Russian and Serbo-Croat.

In India-Pakistan

Famine Stalks Millions

By CYRIL DUNN
from New Delhi

EVEN if India and Pakistan were not in what both call a state of war, they would now be facing a major crisis.

Both are threatened by exceptional scarcities of food and of electric power. Along one long stretch of the frontier now lined by armies, one report predicts "the worst famine in history."

All over the subcontinent, the monsoons rains this year have failed. The resulting crisis has, of course, been obscured by the martial propaganda currently filling the air to the exclusion of all else.

Indeed, India's resolute campaign to grow more food of her own in order to dispense with western wheat and rice, and the political pressures thought to be imported along with these commodities, creates in an odd way notions of looming abundance rather than of shortage.

But for several weeks now disconnected reports have been steadily building up an alarming picture. From the temple city of Madurai in the south, right up through Central India to the Rajasthan border, over large areas of the country, the kharif crop has been described as withering or dead, and prospects for the sowing of the rabi crop are said to be dim.

Behind the great dams of Nehru's socialist development plan, the water levels are low. There is not enough in the vast reservoirs to meet the double demand for irrigation and electric power. Several states have already announced heavy cuts in electricity supply. The capital, depending as it largely does on power from the Bhakra-Nangal grid, expects soon to have her supply from this source cut by half.

The authorities are working on plans to keep the farms and defence industries supplied. Luxuries like movies and neon signs will be the first to go. But industry is bound to be hit and urban unemployment grow.

The government's problems are aggravated in some areas by "the state of war." Rajasthan, where the border outline of famine's spectre is already visible, has had its supply system disrupted by the conflict. The Punjab, though more highly developed, has also been disturbed and here things are being made more difficult by a local campaign for counter-measures against Pakistan.

It is fair to assume that Pakistan is also afflicted by a failure of the monsoon. As a dictatorship, she is better equipped to disguise her difficulties. Anyway, she is less vulnerable than India because she is smaller and not committed as India is to a vast and far-from-finished socialist development. But she depends to a large extent on India for her water supply, because India commands several of the major sources.

So Punjab are demanding that India should suspend her collaboration in the Indo-Pakistan Treaty — contrived some years ago by the World Bank — under which the two countries share the Indus waters. They say the water now flowing into Pakistan should be diverted to meet the Punjab's own needs, and also to assuage the dry throat of Rajasthan.

So far Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri and his colleagues have refused to break their pledged word. By so doing, they have shown for the first time since the crisis began an ability to maintain poise in a grave situation. For they have to rescue India from the immediate threat of famine, which could scarcely be avoided if the West cut off her food aid.

Hayley Harvey Crippen, the first criminal brought to justice by the use of radio, was hanged 55 years ago today — in 1910 — at Pentonville Prison, London. Crippen, an American-born physician, had fallen in love with his receptionist and murdered his wife. When police started looking for the body, which was buried in the cellar, the pair fled to the United States, the girl disguised as a young man. The captain of their vessel became suspicious and radioed for detectives to intercept the ship.

It was announced Indians would be brought to Britain for industrial training. The Marquess of Lothian said in New York Britain was running out of money.

Fright Death Nets Award Of $740,000

NEW YORK — The widow of a toolmaker who was literally frightened to death has been awarded $740,000 in damages. Queens Supreme Court Justice Nicholas Pette announced the judgment for Mrs. Catherine Capomella, 50.

Mrs. Capomella's husband, Salvatore, 53, suffered a fatal heart attack in 1958, shortly after a car smashed through his hedges and careened directly at him while he sat just inside his front window.

Capomella was not hurt directly by the car, which veered off, struck an upright pole and stopped before hitting the house. But after Capomella had talked to the driver, Bruce Kelley, 19, he went back into the house, had a heart seizure and died within 45 minutes.

The suit was brought by the widow against Kelley and his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Kelley, owner of the car.

OTTAWA — The Canada Elections Act is deficient in not allowing scrutineers in returning offices on election day, the defeated Liberal candidate in Carleton riding said. Neo-Nazis Charged In Bombing LONDON (Reuters) — Six men set a synagogue fire with a home-made bomb after a branch meeting of Britain's neo-Nazi National Socialist Movement. It was alleged in court Monday.

Police said the men, aged 19 to 27, set fire to a second synagogue by putting gasoline and a burning cigarette through a hole bored in the door.

They painted slogans reading "hell Hitler" and "we shall free Britain from Jewish rule" on the synagogue walls, the prosecution said. Nazi-style uniforms and badges were found at the home of one defendant.

One of the men said the fires were planned at a local branch of the National Socialist Movement.

"GOOD IDEA" He said Colin Jordan, the movement's leader, had called the plan "a good idea," but did not give it official backing.

The men were ordered held until Dec. 1 for trial.

The woman entered the store on Rosemount Boulevard, picked up a 12-inch bottle of lotion and threatened the 225-pound proprietor with the bottle. The man handed over $50 from the till.

After the robbery the woman dropped the bottle outside the drug store and escaped on foot.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police constable called to a house to investigate reports of a prowler Monday found the building covered floor to ceiling in garbage.

5,000 Ghost Hunters Search for 'Thing'

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters) — Police had a near-riot on their hands here Monday night as 5,000 ghost hunters swamped a city park to search for The Thing.

Teen-agers stoned a police car, started fires and mobbed a television crew as crowds milled around the park, where several persons claimed to have seen a "spirit" in the last few days.

The Thing was described as having a headless, armless body, with one leg severed at the knee.

Almost five years ago, on Nov. 29, 1960, a man slashed his wrists and threw himself in front of a train near the spot where the "spirit" is reported to have been seen.

Put your best face forward — with good bathroom lighting

A razor nick. A little bit of lipstick in the wrong place. These are the things you can avoid with good bathroom lighting. Good bathroom lighting? It may be as easy as installing a single fixture. Start at the mirror. The light should be on your face, not the mirror. And there should be plenty of it. A single fluorescent strip, correctly placed, will solve this problem. A luminous soffit will do the same job and make your bathroom a little prettier in the bargain.

Caucus Shows Confidence In John D

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative leader Diefenbaker won a vote of confidence at his party's first post-election caucus and promised an early non-confidence motion for the minority Liberal government.

George Hees, a 1963 party rebel, told reporters after the one-day meeting broke up there was a resolution of support for Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership. It was "enthusiastically carried by all" immediately.

Both he and Mr. Diefenbaker said there was strong feeling of unity among the party's members of Parliament at the meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who spoke to reporters before Mr. Hees, said his party will move an amendment to the speech from the throne after Parliament opens Jan. 18.

He made it clear that an amendment of this type involves non-confidence in the government. Earlier he had promised a challenge to the government on the question of honesty and integrity in government.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not spell out the precise nature of the motion. He said "we are not telegraphing in advance" the party plans.

However, he restated his election campaign position that integrity and honesty must be restored to public life.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted the Liberal promise in the campaign for the Nov. 8 election to provide $25,000,000 in aid to the Nova Scotia coal industry.

It had not been spelled out how the funds would be put to work, he said. He called on the government to say how the aid is to be given.

PENSION BOOST
At the next parliamentary session, he said, the caucus will press for implementation of a number of Conservative party platforms outlined during the campaign.

Among these are a $100-a-month old age pension at age 70, a $25 increase from the present rate.

The caucus also decided to press for the removal of the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery, another big campaign plank.

CBC CRITICIZED
In effect, Mr. Diefenbaker also criticized the publicly-owned CBC for the publicity it gave to prophecies of the election outcome. Most forecasts were for a Liberal majority.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the CBC "emphasized and re-emphasized" poll predictions which showed the Liberals running in the lead.

Mr. Hees, one of the men mentioned often as a possible Diefenbaker successor, said the whole leadership question "is a dead issue."

Judge 'Won't Resign'

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail quotes Justice Minister Cardin as saying Monday night he asked Mr. Justice Leo Landreville last September to resign from the Ontario Supreme court, but "the judge refused."

Last year Mr. Justice Landreville underwent preliminary hearing on charges of municipal corruption involving a franchise given Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. while he was mayor of Sudbury, Ont., in 1955-57. A Sudbury magistrate could not find sufficient evidence to place him on trial and discharged him on all counts.

BACK TO BENCH
Mr. Justice Landreville then returned to the bench after the hearing from a three-month leave of absence.

In a story from Ottawa, the newspaper says Mr. Cardin said in an interview that benches of the Law Society of Upper Canada are free to publish a confidential report on the judge "if they choose to do so."

At Saks Fifth Avenue, the Princess cut a blue ribbon to open a small salon where British imports were displayed.

The Princess bought nothing in the department stores, but did contribute $1.75 to a bazaar sponsored by the Daughters of the British Empire. She bought a tiny, hand-made teddy bear. Proceeds of the bazaar help support the Victoria home for aged British men and women at Ossining, N.Y.

Sneezing Princess Does Her Duty For British Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—The princess sneezed and the rain dripped from the Earl's hair, but they did their duty for British trade Monday.

Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, dashed in and out of Fifth Avenue stores in a drizzle, and said all the proper things about British goods.

SIDE TRIP CANCELLED
Then they hurried through more raindrops into the Rolls Royce and down to Wall Street for lunch with Bank President David Rockefeller and other businessmen.

Princess Margaret, nearing the end of her 20-day U.S. tour, was so tired Sunday after a Saturday night party that she called off a trip to Connecticut.

'Servant' Won't Be Held

OTTAWA (UPI) — Justice Minister Lucien Cardin said Monday he will not lay charges against a civil servant involved in an espionage case which erupted last May in the expulsion of two Russian diplomats. But he indicated the man might lose his government job.

The spy case, fifth in recent Canadian history involving Soviet agents, was revealed by the Canadian government May 8, the day after two Ottawa-based Russian diplomats were ushered out of the country.

U.S. Wheat Deal

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Yugoslavia will buy 700,000 tons of American wheat for about $45,900,000, the Yugoslavian news agency Tanjug has announced.

The price includes some carrying costs, and payment will be in dollars.

Copper Controlled

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government Monday clamped export controls on Canadian copper.

Trade Minister Sharpe announced the action, taken by a cabinet order passed Monday, "had become necessary . . . as a precautionary move to ensure supply for Canadian users and to assist in maintaining orderly marketing in a situation of growing world shortage."

Botulism Causes Deaths

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Tests have confirmed that botulism from home-preserved green peppers caused the deaths of two persons from Lower Nicola, near Merritt.

Dr. Ian Findlay, Kamloops medical health officer, said the peppers were preserved by Mrs. Ida Helmbold, 34, one of the victims.

Also stricken was Lawrence Barkley, 44.

RECOVERING

Adolf Helmbold, 31, Mrs. Helmbold and Barkley ate the peppers Oct. 29. Mrs. Helmbold died the same day and Barkley in hospital here Nov. 3. Mr. Helmbold is showing signs of recovering, Dr. Findlay said.

"None of this would have happened if the peppers had been cooked before eating," Dr. Findlay said. "Any home preserves, especially vegetables and meat, should be cooked before it is eaten."

Tear Gas Ends Riot in Aden

ADEN (UPI) — British and Arab troops used tear gas to break up a riot that followed the slaying of an Arab—apparently by extremists of the National Liberation Front.

The riot erupted after a group of young men marched toward the shopping area shouting anti-British slogans. A Jewish-owned bar was set afire during the melee.

"The Bank's" 1965 Financial Statement in PLAIN WORDS

Annual Statements and Balance Sheets sometimes seem as though they were drawn up only for the trained eyes of accountants and financial experts. For those of our customers, shareholders and friends who are neither of these, we present the highlights of our 1965 operations in plain, straightforward terms:

Funds entrusted to us:

In personal accounts used mainly to accumulate savings	$1,145,478,271
In business accounts to meet payrolls, purchase materials, pay taxes and other obligations	1,495,114,376
	2,640,592,647
Total of customers' deposits	91,318,464
Commitments made to assist customers in their foreign and domestic trade transactions and miscellaneous accounts payable	126,079,470
Funds supplied by shareholders to provide banking offices and equipment and as a reserve to protect our customers' funds	$2,857,990,581
Total funds available for investment

These funds were employed as follows:

Cash resources—to meet the daily withdrawal of funds by customers	$444,171,301
Call loans and Government of Canada securities available to provide additional cash at short notice	597,073,517
Funds lent to provinces, municipalities and corporations by investing in their securities	185,290,787
Funds lent to enable customers to acquire their own homes under the provisions of the National Housing Act, 1954	95,954,247
Loans made to our customers to finance their business operations and for their personal needs	1,416,422,453
Lands, buildings and equipment needed to provide our customers with convenient and efficient facilities at our 665 branches	31,685,556
Other assets—mainly customers' commitments to "The Bank" covering foreign and domestic trade transactions	87,392,720
Total funds employed	$2,857,990,581

That in simple terms sets out our position as at October 31, 1965. A measure of our progress is the fact that total assets increased by $189 millions or 7 per cent. Profits after taxes and all charges amounted to $9,914,543, equivalent to $3.30 per share as compared with $3.03 a share in the 1964 fiscal year. This amounts to less than 0.4 per cent of the total funds employed. It was a good year for our customers and our shareholders, to whom we extend our thanks for their continuing confidence. It was a good year, too, because of the devotion and teamwork of our thousands of employees across Canada . . . good reason for us to feel assured that . . .

Crash Inquest Told

Black Powder in Plane

VANCOUVER (CP)—An RCMP chemist said Monday traces of black powder were found near the rear toilet of a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane that crashed following an explosion July 8, killing 52.

Mrs. Rolande Rouen of the RCMP crime laboratory said traces of the black powder were found in four sections of the aircraft in the area of the rear toilet.

She told an inquest into the death of the 52 passengers and crew an explosion from black powder would leave a trail of very dense white smoke.

In earlier evidence John Hyro said he saw the explosion of the DC-6B aircraft near 100 Mile House in the B.C. interior. There had been a billow of white silky smoke from the jet.

Mrs. Rouen said there could have been other explosions combined with the black powder. The residue of this material—for instance nitro-glycerine—would have been washed away by rain after the crash.

Black powder could be made by mixing sulphur, charcoal and saltpetre.

Ralph B. Barer, metallurgist with the Pacific Naval Laboratory in Esquimalt, testified a piece of metal recovered from one of the victims was found to contain a copper content that appeared to be foreign to the aircraft. He said the victim was sitting in the back of the plane.

George Murray, representing the attorney general's department, asked if the copper content from the fragment could have been from some sort of detonator.

NO FINER PILOT

Mr. Barer said he was not familiar with the content of a detonator. The fragment was different from all pieces of metal from the aircraft he examined.

Fred Foster, a CPA pilot, said he had flown with Capt. John Steele, pilot of the crashed aircraft, and said there was no finer pilot. He had no doubt the pilot would have refused to take over a plane if he thought there was something wrong with it.

Skeleton Unearthed

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Police reported Monday they have found a skeleton believed to be that of Maurice Garneau, of Chicoutimi, Que., missing since 1957.

They said the skeleton was uncovered in a wood four miles north of the village of St. Andre du Lac St. Jean, near this community 110 miles north of Quebec City.

Garneau is believed to have been one of the victims of an underworld purge of potential witnesses to a massive arson operation in the province.

Kidnapped Girl, 8, Freed Unharm

BASTROP, La. (AP)—A freckle-faced eight-year-old, Nancy Keller, was released unharmed late Monday nearly 24 hours after she was kidnapped from the yard of her home here.

The child said she was put out of a car just south of town and promptly telephoned her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Keller, from a nearby nursery. Minutes later, the FBI announced Douglas Charles Em-rich had been arrested in connection with the kidnapping. Nancy told her mother and FBI agents that the abductor let her out of the car near the nursery. Officers said she furnished an excellent description of the man.

Impaired Driver Sent to Jail

A second offence for impaired driving meant 14 days in jail for Agil Ali Shoma.

He pleaded guilty Monday in central magistrate's court to impaired driving Saturday night.

He also admitted being convicted in October of impaired driving.

ABUSIVE

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Agil Ali Shoma's car collided with another car when turning left from Douglas into Harbottle at 7:30 p.m., Saturday.

"He became very abusive," Mr. Birkett said.

He also staggered and smelled strongly of liquor, court was told.

BARRER DRIVING

A breathalyzer reading of .27 was taken, Mr. Birkett said.

In addition to the jail sentence, Agil Ali Shoma was barred from driving anywhere in Canada for four months.

An absent witness forced adjournment of a trial Monday.

Prosecutor John McIlree said Joseph Lawrence had been subpoenaed to give evidence against Helge Isdahl, 2615 Roseberry, who has pleaded not guilty to being a minor without any car insurance, to driving while under suspension and to careless driving.

WARRANT OUT

A warrant will be issued against Lawrence.

The Crown proceeded on the driving-while-under-suspension charge and after four witnesses had testified, applied for the adjournment.

The case will be called again Nov. 30 to fix a date for proceeding.

Asian Russia At Parley

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Russian delegates showed up at the second Asian education ministers' conference Monday representing the Soviet Union for the first time in United Nations history as an Asian country.

K. Aymenay Kazakh, Russia's education minister, attended as the chief representative.

The conference, sponsored by UNESCO, will attempt to find answers to some of Asia's massive problems in education.

The annual torchlight canvass for Kiwanis Village projects will take place Nov. 29.

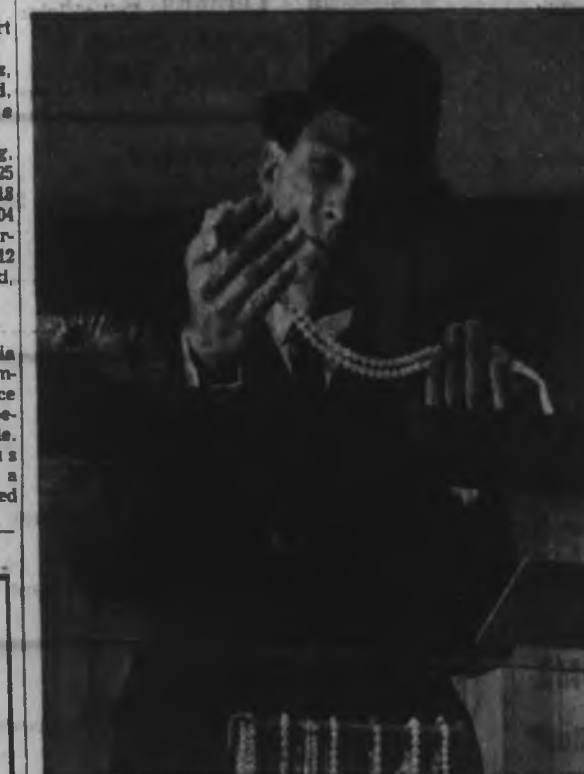

Proceeds will provide more accommodation for elderly persons. There are now 163 living in comfortable quarters in Kiwanis Village at rentals they can afford.

The village is a non-profit organization, says president Sam Sweetnam, and donations may be declared as income tax deductions.

"Residents in outlying districts are urged to mail their donations to our campaign office at 723 Fort Street," he said.

Girl Claims Jail Likely In Rhodesia

LONDON (Reuters) — The 23-year-old daughter of the former Rhodesian premier, Garfield Todd, said she was flying home and during the breakaway government of Ian Smith to arrest her.

Judith Todd, a journalism student at Columbia University in New York, said she was liable to be arrested and sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment under the Preservation of Constitutional Government Act.

She said she was returning home today as a "guinea pig" to underline Britain's responsibility to protect in Rhodesia those who demonstrate their loyalty to the legal government.

Judith

'EXPECTS' ARREST

"My requests for troops to be sent to Rhodesia would make me liable for a sentence of up to 20 years under the Preservation of the Constitution Act invoked in Rhodesia to deter opposition to Mr. Smith's regime."

Miss Todd said she expected to be arrested either when she arrived at Salisbury airport or when she travelled to the home where her father is under government restriction.

She appealed to British Prime Minister Wilson for protection "if for any reason I am arrested, apprehended, restricted, or in any other way denied freedom and rights."

Representatives To Be Swapped

WELLINGTON (AP) — New Zealand and Singapore have agreed to exchange high commissioners. Prime Minister Keith Holyoake said. The names of the first appointees are to be announced later.

While Pemberton's say this may seem harmless enough, the end result is to drain off the type of investment funds that the Canadian economy needs so badly.

market value is of many

Cassius 'Whups' Floyd With Stinging Barrage

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Cassius Clay tortured a dead-game Floyd Patterson Monday night and handed the ex-champion a fierce beating to score a technical knockout in the 12th round of his second heavyweight title defense.

But Floyd protested weakly through swollen lips.

ONLY KNOCKDOWN

Clay, who prefers to be known by his Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali, had Patterson on the deck in the sixth round. When Clay failed to go to a neutral corner, the referee stopped the fight.

Time after time Buster Watson, his trainer, picked Patterson up bodily at the end of a round, as if to stretch Floyd's aching back muscles.

The big crowd of 3,300 cheered Patterson and booed the champ throughout the fight. They disagreed with the referee's decision to end it, but it was a humane move by a competent official.

Several Clay partisans tried to charge into the ring at the end, only to be ejected by a posse of police officers after a struggle.

STINGING JAB

Clay flicked that stinging jab into Patterson's face all night long, raising lumps around both of his opponent's eyes. It seemed impossible that Patterson could continue but, just when it appeared he must go, Clay backed off and started jabbing and moving again.

Referee Krause warned Clay several times about talking to his opponent, yelling "stop the chatter" at the super-confident champion time and again.

"I was so surprised he could take so many punches," said Clay in a neutral corner after the fight. "I dare any man to day to take what he took. I am a heavyweight Ray Robinson."

HAD HANDS DOWN

Clay fought with his hands down at his side, flicking the jab, doubling up with the hook, and occasionally driving home the right to the head.

Cassius would drop his hands and just ease his head out of the way of Patterson's wild shots. Floyd, painfully slow in contrast to the quick moves of Clay, kept plugging along throwing punches, but landing most of them on his air.

The live crowd at the convention centre and the thousands who watched the closed-circuit telecast had made Patterson the sentimental favorite,

Clay's big advantage was in height and reach stopped the count at five and waited four more seconds for Clay to go to the corner. Patterson finally got up, wobbly, at the count of nine. That was the only knockdown.

Cassius did nothing but dance and move in the first round. After that, he appeared to be toying with Floyd, who was trying to become the first man

Acting, Staging Sincere

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Columnist Drama Critic

Somewhere around scene four, as Fred Astaire waltzed around a panting Chubby Checker, somebody suggested the heavyweight title fight would make an interesting dramatic review.

Sure.

But what must have really taken method directing was the humble ceremony at the end, where the bloody brothers kissed and made up compliments for Muhammad.

Patterson said Muhammad was great.

Muhammad said Muhammad was great.

SINCERE ACTING

His humility upon keeping whatever it is they were fighting for, besides money, was the most sincere acting since Jack Johnson lay on his back and shielded his eyes from the hot glare of the sun that shone over Havana before Castro.

Clay has certainly made his sport one thing: show biz. Because, and this is probably the reason theatres are folding across the country, nobody comes out to see nice guys. You have to hate somebody to pay good money to see him fight.

And whether nice guys finish first or last, they surely don't finish in the money.

And if stage performers had an audience that is as tough to please as the fight crowd, there might be more actors with feet of Clay.

Cassius Terrell Next Target

(From AP)

LAS VEGAS — Fight notes:

The World Boxing Association said before the fight that both Patterson and Clay had posted $50,000 bonds that guaranteed they would fight WBA champion Ernie Terrell within six months.

Referee Harry Krause had it 53-46, judge Bill Stremmel 54-43, judge Harold Buck 54-45 and AP 54-44, all for Clay, in points.

Patterson said his back trouble originally started in 1957 and he hurt it last Wednesday while sparring. "In the third round it started to ache," he said. "Floyd will visit a specialist in New York before he decides whether or not to retire."

When everything is counted, Clay likely will get $750,000 and Floyd half that much.

Suddenly realizing he might be overlooking his own talents, Clay then switched the conversation toward himself.

WHAT MORE?

"I think it's time that the American public gave me the justice that I'm due," said The Great Encinator. "I've beaten everyone around now, haven't I? What more do they want?"

"Sure, I knew I was ahead when they stopped the fight. I think they did the right thing," Patterson, who suffered a wrenched back when he fell to the canvas in the fourth, was manoeuvring alongside Clay in a corner of the right after the fight and Cassius put his arm around him.

GIFT BOOK

"I got nothing against Floyd," said Clay. "He believes in his religion and I believe in mine, that's all. I got a book I want to give him. It's called 'A Message to the Black Man.'"

By this time, officials of sports-vision, which televised the bout into theatres throughout the country, had secured a TV monitor and brought it up to ringside so Clay could see a rerun of the final round.

RHYTHM AND GRACE

Cassius' eyes opened wide as he watched himself on the monitor.

"Look at that rhythm and grace," he exclaimed, following his own movements intently.

NOT INTERESTED

Patterson, who had looked at them for nearly 12 rounds, was not overly interested.

He let Clay rave on and every so often the champ would interrupt himself to say a good word about Floyd.

Each time he did, Patterson managed a wan smile. It was the only time he smiled all night.

Clay Praises Dead-Game Challenger

By MILTON RICHMAN

LAS VEGAS (UPI)—Breathing a little hard although in perfect voice as usual, Cassius Clay showed beaten Floyd Patterson with unstinting praise Monday night and then typically demanded plenty of credit for himself from the "American public."

Clay spent nearly 15 minutes in the ring after stopping the weary, rubber-legged Patterson at 2:18 of the 12th round, and he delivered a long, impassioned oration before finally heading for his dressing room.

"Patterson is a real man," declared the puffing, perspiring Clay moments after successfully defending his heavyweight crown. "I don't want people down-righting him because he lost."

"I figured the fight would go six-seven rounds, no more. But he didn't fall at anytime and he still was standing up at the finish."

HELD UP COUNT

Technically, Patterson did go to the canvas for an eight-count in the sixth and Clay might have cost himself a knockout in that round when he hovered over the fallen Floyd, as he did in his last Lewiston (Me.) fight with Sonny Liston (Me.) referee Harry Krause refused to continue counting until Cassius retreated to a neutral corner and Patterson weathered the round with the help of the mandatory eight-count.

JUST FASTER

"He fought a much better fight than Liston," Clay went on in his non-stop style. "He even stunned me once. I just happen to be faster than he is and that's what made the difference."

Toronto Comes Back After Shaky Start

(From AP)

Leafs, who had only 11 goals in their first eight games, have 21 in their last six.

Rookies Mike Walton and Bill Selby and newcomer Orland Kurtenbach each had a goal and an assist Sunday. So did the rejuvenated Eddie Shack and sophomore-pros Pete Stemkowski and Ron Ellis and newcomer Larry Jeffrey all got at least one point.

Somewhat amazingly after their horrible start, the Leafs are now only one point behind the second-place Hawks and three behind the leading Montreal Canadiens as other Sunday games helped tighten the National Hockey League standings.

Tiger-Cats Favored

TORONTO (CP) — First betting odds quoted by book-makers on Saturday's Grey Cup football game here between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers list the "Tcats as 3½ point favorites."

This means if someone is making a friendly wager on the Tiger-Cats he must give his friend 3½ points and Hamilton must win by at least four before the Hamilton bettor may collect.

The Bombers were expected to be favorites because of their 26-21 victory over Hamilton a month ago, and four Grey Cup triumphs in their last five attempts.

Fines from Fracas?

'Francis' Fault

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Monday night Emile Francis, general manager of New York Rangers, triggered the fracas at Madison Square Garden Sunday night.

"There is no question about it," he said.

"Had he not gone over to protest with the minor official, there would have been no occasion for anybody to get involved," Campbell said.

"He has no business interfering with any league official."

The fracas erupted in the final period of the Detroit Red Wings-New York Rangers game played at the Garden Sunday.

Francis protested to goal judge Arthur Reichert that Floyd Smith's third-period marker did not cross the goal line.

Fans in the area where Francis and Reichert were arguing, suddenly decided to join in and surrounded the pair. Several New York players then scaled the 10-foot barrier which separates the goal judge from the playing surface and came to assist their boss.

Reichert has been a goal judge in New York for 30 years. A Ranger president William Jennings said he would bar Reichert from the Garden.

NEVER AGAIN

"He'll never get into this building again — even if the league appointed him," Jennings said. "It's our building."

Goal judges are appointed by the NHL from lists submitted by the six clubs.

Campbell said the goal judge cannot be barred from the stadium.

The NHL president added that fines will be assessed those players involved in the melee and that he had given no thought to suspensions as a form of punishment.

Blades Here For Rematch

Los Angeles Blades are back in town, and Frank Mario isn't taking them lightly. He remembers what happened here last Wednesday.

Victoria Maple Leafs, who need points from the Blades in their game tonight at Memorial Arena, played them on Wednesday and were rather fortunate to skate away with a 4-3 win.

Blades led 2-0 at one stage and Leafs didn't get it won until 18:34 of the third period.

Leafs are currently tied for first place with Portland Buckaroos, and use up one of their two games in hand tonight.

Defenceman Fred Hucul will sit out tonight's game. He was to begin treatment today on the back he injured Saturday in Vancouver, and may be ready for Friday night's game against the Seals in San Francisco.

Hucul's injury has been diagnosed as bruised tissue high up on the back near the spine. As such, it is hard to determine exactly how much time will be needed for it to heal.

Aside from Hucul, the Leafs are in good shape.

Women's Tenpins To Ann Goodman

With two games left to play in the 30-game city women's tenpins tournament, Anne Goodman is leading Lorna Pollock by 58 pins. But Mrs. Pollock faltered briefly, and Mrs. Goodman charged home to win.

Mrs. Goodman shot a 192 in the 19th game at Mayfair Lanes while Mrs. Pollock shot a 108. That put Mrs. Goodman ahead, and she stayed there, although beaten 183-177, in the final game.

When final figures were tallied, Mrs. Goodman had 3,466 for a 20-pin victory over Mrs. Pollock. Mary Cooper, who shot a 910 series Sunday for her best showing of the tournament, placed third with 3,437.

All three will compete with bowlers from up-Island and the mainland in the B.C. roll-offs next Sunday at Mayfair.

In District Soccer

Scots Knot Top Position

Canadian Scottish is back in form, and there's a tie atop the first division again in the Victoria and District Soccer League.

Scottish, which has done little in league play after winning the McGavin Cup competition, handed Gorge its first defeat Sunday, winning 4-0 on two goals by Hannis Fisher and one each by Oscar Valdal and Ron Jenkin.

Hourigans Kickers, beaten only by Gorge this year, moved back into a first-place tie by stopping Navy, 8-4.

TWO EACH

Franz Doesburg and Henry Vanderhorst each scored twice and Otto Essage, Jim Schulz, Bill Cameron and Gomer Beyer got the others. Bill Bennett, with two, Don Lawson and John Larsen scored for Navy.

Tom Walker and Alex Stewart scored to give Luckies a 2-0 win over Brodies in the other first division match.

With the defeat of Gorge, the only unbeaten team left in the league is Esquimalt, which edged Sidney, 1-0, Sunday on a goal by John Weaver. Esquimalt has eight wins and a draw in nine second division matches.

No one tobacco blend is right for every pipe smoker.

That's why SAIL offers you four.

Pipe smokers are individualists. That's why we blend Dutch Sail tobacco four different ways. Each blend is composed from the same 14 selected tobaccos—so they're all exceptionally mild, cool and slow-burning. Only the taste varies. One of them is just right for you.

Sail Natural (in the Ivory Pouch) is completely non-aromatic—just about the purest tobacco you can buy. Sail Regular (Yellow Pouch) is non-aromatic; with a nut-like flavour. Sail Light Aromatic (Red Pouch) has a touch of Dutch heather honey. And Sail Aromatic (Green Pouch) offers full-bodied flavour and a delightful aroma.

Cleveland Browns all but clinched a spot in the National Football League final on Sunday but Baltimore Colts couldn't shake off Green Bay Packers in the two-club scrap for Western Conference honors.

Playing before 76,281 fans, the largest crowd to ever watch a game in Dallas, the Browns outscored the Cowboys, 24-17, as Jim Brown scored one touchdown and set up another with a 28-yard run.

BIG COMEBACK

In Baltimore, Jim Orr made a spectacular return to action to clinch a 34-24 comeback victory for the Colts over Philadelphia Eagles.

Taken to hospital after a second-quarter shoulder injury, Orr came back after x-rays showed no serious damage and ran from the dressing-room to get into a fourth-quarter series. Two plays later, the slightly-built flanker-back took a 22-yard pass from John Unitts to clinch.

MOORE SCORES

Just before Orr had returned, Lenny Moore had given the Colts a 27-24 lead by going over from one yard after setting himself up with a 47-yard run.

The Packers, who had scored only 36 points in their last four games, broke loose for 28 in the final quarter to defeat Minnesota Vikings, 38-13, and stay one game behind the Colts.

FUMBLES HELP

Behind, 10-13, entering the final quarter, the Packers recovered three fumbles and made one interception. One fumble led directly to a touchdown and the other two set up two major scores.

Joe Namath may really be a 400,000 quarterback after all. He has already convinced the man who paid him the record bonus — Sonny Werblin, owner of the American Football League's New York Jets.

"Joe, I'm ready to renegotiate," Werblin told Namath in the dressing room after Sunday's game against Houston Oilers.

Namath and Werblin smiled, but they were the only ones. Namath had just led his club to a 41-14 romp over Houston Oilers. He had tied a record by throwing four touchdowns passes and helped set a new high for club offense.

Before he was relieved at the start of the fourth quarter, Namath had completed 17 of 26 passes for 221 yards as the Jets, led on the ground by Matt Snell and Bill Mathis, moved the ball for 552 yards. Snell gained 135 yards in 19 carries and Mathis 126 in 14 carries.

Namath's emergence has come a bit late for the Jets this season but the New York club now has a four-game win streak for the first time in its six-year history. But it came after five defeats and a tie in the first six games.

The keeper of the Old Dun Cow hoists his Gold Keg Beer.

Englishmen have become terribly fond of Gold Keg Beer.

To Canada.

"Business has been brisk," said George Longmate, raising his mug, "since you chaps brought Gold Keg to England."

George's pub, the Old Dun Cow, has been in the family since 1600. The men who hide their time there are among the world's best beer-drinkers.

Ideal prospects for Operation Gold Keg.

We took Gold Keg to England, to see how Englishmen would like it. And we've been mildly astonished ever since.

As Mr. Longmate says: "My regulars are very taken with the brew. For that matter, so am I."

More than anything, these hardy Britons like Gold Keg's rich flavour. They claim it's as mellow as the best English beers—and much easier to drink.

You should try a case of Gold Keg soon.

Labatt's brews Gold Keg Beer from the finest imported Hops and Malts.

Department Honors Retiring Educator

Education Minister Peterson paid tribute Monday to Dr. J. F. K. English, who retired Sept. 30 after serving as deputy minister of education since 1935.

Nearly 80 members of the department of education and friends gathered in the dining room above the legislature to see Mr. Peterson present Dr. English with a gold wrist watch, on behalf of the provincial government.

Dr. English, 65, who in June of this year was named chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, looked around the room and said:

"I'LL MISS YOU"

"I've always wondered how I would feel when my time came to retire. . . I shall remember you for a great many years and I will miss you very much."

Employees of the department presented Dr. English with a leather suitcase, and gave a message to his wife, Ada.

Dr. English was born in Chilliwack. He became a teacher in 1922, was appointed provincial inspector of schools in 1933 and became assistant deputy minister for the department in 1935.

"MANY YEARS"

Mr. Peterson, in presenting the watch bearing the inscription: J. F. K. English, service to British Columbia, 1922 to 1935, wished Dr. English "many, many years of good health and happiness."

Spotlight on Defence

B.C. Tel communication systems help guard our continent against surprise attacks

To detect the approach of and defend against missiles, rockets or planes entering the territorial atmosphere of North America is the role of NORAD—North American Air Defence Command—with its Combat Operations Centre at Colorado Springs.

Jointly controlled by the United States and Canada for defence against surprise nuclear attack, this complex nerve centre demonstrates vividly how B.C. Tel and a continent-wide network of telecommunications systems is meeting the challenge of today's "Cold War" conditions.

B.C. Tel's variety of the very latest developments in the communications systems are playing a key role in perhaps the most important of all public services—defence of North America against destruction. These electronic marvels provide the connecting links for data transmission devices between radar sites and strategically located computer centres.

Such dramatic advances for military purposes are even now expanding our everyday communications. Long distance calling, radio-telephone coverage, TWX and other special data services are but a few.

New Business Will Cater To Collectors

By BILL STAVDAL

Norman Hull is building something new in Victoria tourist shops—an international club where collectors of all sorts can gather.

The coffee is always on for quarters, established at 801 Wharf Street last July.

"I came into this business to enjoy it," says the 47-year-old ex-RCAF officer.

DON'T GIVE HOOT

"I don't give a hoot if a tourist comes into my shop and doesn't buy anything, so long as the visit makes him enjoy Victoria a little more."

Brave words for a retired flight lieutenant who poured all his savings plus a loan into an idea.

COLLECTORS' BUSINESS

Mr. Hull isn't interested in the antique or souvenir trade. He's concentrating on building up a business in collectors' items of all kinds.

"You have no idea how many collectors there are. You discover that almost everyone collects something," he says.

At the moment his stock consists mainly of stamps and coins, items he collected privately for years. But he's branching into military badges, old books and even a set of finely-carved ivory chessmen.

To welcome visitors he created the Ten O'Clock Club, at which anyone is welcome to come and chat over a mid-morning cup of coffee.

LIKE CLUB

To make people feel at home he put potted plants in the window overlooking the Inner Harbor, bought a few chairs and had a phone installed for public use. Customers are welcome on both sides of the counter.

"My idea is to make it like a club," Mr. Hull explains.

WIFE WORKING

He hasn't yet made any money on the venture. To help support it, his wife Joan is still working in Vancouver, where they lived until Mr. Hull's retirement from the air force last spring.

Born in Grand Forks, B.C., he entered banking before the war came along and put him in Mosquito fighter-bombers.

Surviving low-level day bombing, he went back to banking after the war, then signed up again in 1951.

PAYING OFF

He had liked Victoria during a postwar year here, and got the idea for his shop on a recent visit.

His work, hardest he's ever done, he says, is paying off in small ways already. People have begun leaving their private collections at the shop for display only.

"Eventually it may be like a museum," the collector's collector predicts.

Thieves Shoot Priest

DETROIT (UPI)—Two men invaded a Roman Catholic rectory on Detroit's East Side Monday and shot a priest at his breakfast table after stealing more than $3,500 and locking two priests and a caretaker in a basement vault.

The men fled with between $3,500 and $5,000, police said. Officers launched a search for them.

Police said the gunmen forced Father John Wheeling to open the walk-in vault. After taking the money they locked Fr. Wheeling, another priest and a caretaker in the vault.

Looking for a way out of the building, they walked into a room where Father Dominic Monzo, 49, was eating breakfast.

They fired a warning shot and then shot him in the right arm. He was hospitalized.

Pickets End Space Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—A threat of delay in next month's doubleheader Gemini space spectacular was lifted Monday when striking machinists agreed to withdraw pickets from Cape Kennedy and go back to work.

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell are scheduled to blast off Dec. 4, in Gemini 7, to be followed Dec. 15, by Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford in Gemini 6.

To Antarctic

TOKYO (AP)—The icebreaker Fuji has sailed for Japan's Showa base on Ongul Island in the Antarctic. The 47 scientists aboard plan to reopen the base which was closed in 1961 and enlarge it to twice its size.

Fewer Injuries Boost Work Days

Time-loss injuries in the provincial civil service were trimmed by more than 20 per cent since a co-ordinator of accident prevention was appointed three years ago, says Labor Minister Peterson.

Fatalities in the civil service during that period were reduced from 12 in 1962 to eight in 1963, five in 1964 and two so far this year, he said.

Mr. Peterson cited these figures to show what can be accomplished when people become safety-conscious. He said elimination of lost working time caused by accidents would almost wipe out B.C.'s shortage of skilled labor.

The labor minister said that 1,107,850 man-days lost through industrial injuries of more than three days duration in 1964 was the equivalent of 5,000 people being off work full time.

He said that if the time lost through accidents which kept workmen away for less than three days, or resulted in permanent disability or death, and the time lost through traffic accidents were added, the total would be equivalent of having 10,000 or more people absent from work for a whole year.

Single Body Unrecovered

CHICAGO (UPI)—One body remains unrecovered from the crash of a United Air Lines jet that plunged into Lake Michigan Aug. 16, killing all 30 persons aboard.

The Boeing 727 crashed moments before it was to land at O'Hare Field. Seven bodies were recovered the first 24 hours. The bodies of two stewardesses were recovered Sunday.

The missing body was identified as Kenneth J. Cummings, Manchester, N.H.

Fire Razes House Of Widow

By KLAUS MUENTER

SALTAR—A long-time Saltair resident, Mrs. Verna Rumble, lost her home in a fire Saturday even though two volunteer fire departments were within easy reach.

Not protected by the Lady-smith fire department nor by the Chemainus fire brigade the large, 55-year-old home of Mrs. Rumble burned to the ground in a fire that lasted almost seven hours.

Most of the elderly widow's furniture and other belongings were carried from the house before it collapsed. No one was injured.

The house was insured and Mrs. Rumble is staying with friends in Nanaimo. Several Saltair residents feel the loss of the house was unnecessary and they are painfully aware that their unorganized area is not protected by any fire department.

They say if a fire truck had come promptly the home would have been saved. RCMP at Lady-smith attended the fire shortly after it had broken out, presumably in the attic.

Unable to reach it because of thick smoke the RCMP called for help and the Lady-smith fire department sent out a rescue truck.

Can't Run All Over

In the meantime, the blaze had burned beyond control.

Chief Blair said Monday the house is located one mile outside the Lady-smith fire protection district and the town's firemen went out strictly on a voluntary basis.

He said if the call for help had come from a private Saltair citizen and not from the RCMP he would not even have dispatched the rescue truck.

He said, "We have to stay within our boundaries, you just cannot run all over the country."

Opted Out

Lady-smith fire chief Blair noted that Saltair people "apparently do not want fire protection because when they were asked to amalgamate with North Cowichan they voted against it."

He referred to a vote taken in July when Saltair residents voted 265 against 77 for merging with the North Cowichan municipality.

Until then the Saltair area had been covered by Lady-smith and Chemainus volunteer fire brigades each taking about half the area.

Saltair resident W. H. Olsen said the Saturday fire in a way is ironic because the widow's husband, Fred Rumble, while a member of the Saltair Rate-payors' Association about five years ago, pushed for fire protection from Lady-smith or both, but it never materialized.

Mr. Olsen suggested the Saltair water board should go ahead and obtain fire protection for the district. Another Saltair resident, G. B. Motherwell, described the fire Saturday as "a damned disgrace."

He said "before the amalgamation vote there was never any argument of the Chemainus fire department attending fires in the Saltair area."

He stressed the Saltair people would be glad to pay for fire protection but they are reluctant to merge with the North Cowichan municipality just for the sake of this protection.

Learned Lesson

Mr. Motherwell charged, "If the almighty dollar takes precedence over people's lives and property it has gone pretty far." Chemainus fire chief M. A. Rubynuk said his department was approached Saturday to attend the fire and some of the firemen went on their own to help.

He said neither of the department's two trucks was dispatched. "We are not allowed to leave our area and neither men nor equipment are covered if they fight fires in Saltair."

Another Saltair taxpayer said, "I hope Saltair people have learned their lesson and will do something about fire protection."

North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton meanwhile stated that talks are in process for fire protection for the southern part of Saltair to be covered by the Chemainus department.

He said, "I understand the Saltair people are quite willing to pay for it."

Mothers' Delegation Planning Protest

CAMPBELL RIVER—A delegation of mothers will take a petition to Highways Minister Gagliardi and Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell protesting the hazards to pedestrians on the Island Highway between Willow Point and Campbell River.

The mothers called a meeting of parents Monday night. Two schoolchildren were killed in the past two months on the stretch of highway.

WALLACE BAIKIE, for the chamber of commerce, said there is no feeling or desire among businessmen to have the highway go through the town. "Our main street is a highway and it shouldn't be," he said.

Mr. Sandra Baikie was named chairman to organize the trip to Victoria.

More than 50 persons attended the meeting. Two representatives of the district municipal council, one from the school board and one from the chamber of commerce spoke in favor of the resolution.

Coun. John Steven told the meeting that municipal council has written many letters to the highways department for the re-

Nine Teachers To Be Moved

OTTAWA (CP)—Nine Canadian teachers in Rhodesia will be reassigned to other countries, the external aid office said Monday.

A spokesman said the action will be taken because of administrative difficulties caused by withdrawal of the Canadian government representative in Salisbury.

Arrangements have been made for the teachers and their families—some 30 persons in all—to stay in Pretoria, South Africa, until new posts are found for them in other parts of Africa, or in other countries eligible for assistance under Canada's external aid program.

The teachers include: Wilmer Penner, 30, Landmark, Man.; John Donald MacNeill, 28, 2717 Third Ave., Prince Albert, Sask.; David A. Daum, 26, 5131 Third Ave., Regina.

Stanley Murphy, 49, former Victoria High School teacher and reeve of Saanich, has been in Rhodesia for the past year as a teacher. His family is with him.

Nanaimo Yachtsmen

Islanders Seek World Crown

NANAIMO — Two Nanaimo yachtsmen have been chosen to represent Canada in the world championship 505 Regatta in Australia in March.

They are Mike Pope and Hugh Heath.

The Nanaimo Yacht Club members will be training from now till they leave for down-under, and they are expecting their toughest competition to come from France, the United States and the Australians themselves.

Mr. Pope is an experienced skipper in international competition, having represented Canada in the North American championships this summer in San Francisco. He has wide racing experience.

in other class boats as well as the 505 class.

Crewman Heath is better known as a Lightning class skipper, and will be working hard to pick up the 505 techniques.

Although Mr. Pope is a manufacturer of fiberglass 505's the Canadian entry will use an Australian-built boat in the world championship.

The Australians are providing all the boats for competitors in the interests of uniformity.

The first building was erected at Spuzzum in 1948 as depot for the Hudson's Bay Company fur brigade. A ferry was established here in 1858, crossing the Fraser.

If your beneficiary dies first, what will happen to your life insurance benefits?

When the unexpected happens, as it sometimes does, it's important to know what steps to take. That's why the competent advice of your Manufacturers Life representative is so valuable. Here are some of the practical points he'll cover.

1. Unless you originally named an alternative or contingent beneficiary, the money from your policy would be payable to your estate. This may tie up the money and subject it to creditors claims and unnecessary estate costs. In the end, it might not even go to the person you would have chosen unless your will is up to date.

2. If young children were also originally named as beneficiaries, and they are still under age, another problem arises. Unless you make special provision, the policy proceeds at your death would have to be paid into court and held until they reach their majority.

But don't wait until something like this happens. Call your Manufacturers Life representative today. He will review your beneficiary arrangements—and suggest changes if they are necessary. He is experienced in matters of this kind, and he offers you the kind of counsel you can rely on.

Panorama of Rugged Scenery

It's a Lovely Drive to Port Hardy—So They Tell Him

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

Yes, Virginia, you can drive from Victoria to Port Hardy. The stretch to Courtenay is easy. But the Upper Island Sports Car Club proved you can make it to Port Hardy, night, in the rain, through muck, over frosty bridges, and catching a lot of side roads in the way. The event was the Courtenay-based club's annual Tye rally. More than 30 drivers and navigators, piloting cars ranging in size from Minis to Volvos, started driving at 10 p.m. Saturday and kept at it until late Sunday afternoon. The tough rally covered more than 500 miles, and gave points for the B.C. regional rally championship. This brought some crack teams from the mainland, whipping through mud, signing in at a gate on the road to Beaver Cove, and breakfasting at Port Hardy. On the way, there was a spectacular panorama of forest, river, mountains, and rugged island scenery. The rally dramatically proved Island thoroughfares are being opened, and they can be travelled by small, low-clearance cars. Astute readers will note the above story is written in the impersonal third person.

"They" had a spectacular view. "They" breakfasted in Port Hardy, "they" enjoyed the island scenery. This is so, even though this writer, with driver Roly Achurch, were in competing car No. 12. But our spectacular panorama went something like this:

1 a.m. somewhere west of Campbell River; muffler sounds funny. Heater is cutting out. Cold. Lost. 2:30 a.m., somewhere north-west of Campbell River; muffler fell off. Rain. Cold. Lost again. 3:30 a.m., road to Port Hardy. Mileage crazy. Heater packed up. Freezing cold. Teeth chattering. 4 a.m., somewhere. Cliff on one side of the road, nothing down there but blackness. Instruction sheet has stopped making sense. 5 a.m., a few miles south of Beaver Cove, muffler fell off. Thrown in trunk. Heater quit for good. So did we.

Colwood Home Burned

Fire ripped through a Colwood home Monday morning, destroying the kitchen and attic.

Mr. and Mrs. William Muller and their eight-year-old son, Michael, were away at the time.

There was smoke and water damage to the remainder of the Muller house at 501 La-toria.

Colwood volunteer fire department received the call at 8:10 a.m. and had the fire under control after 30 minutes.

There was no indication as to how the fire began. The house and its contents were insured.

The Mullers will stay with relatives until they can find permanent accommodation.

Deep Cove

Water Boost Resented

Victoria's decision to charge for water taken from Elk Lake will cause the deepest resentment in the Deep Cove district, according to a letter received by the city Monday.

The decision, says B. W. W. Clowes, chairman of the board of trustees, Deep Cove Waterworks District, will cause hardship on people who are already paying high rates for their water.

Mr. Clowes asks to be allowed to present his case in person before city council before any irrevocable decision is made.

PASSED ON

The proposed charge the city would make to Central Saanich would be five cents a thousand gallons. This charge, Mr. Clowes said, will undoubtedly be passed along by Central Saanich to the consumers in the Deep Cove district.

Inasmuch as the district supplies all the water used by the B.C. Ferries at their Swartz Bay terminal it would mean higher water costs there also.

Furthermore, the federal department of transport at the airport and the department of agriculture at the experimental farm would both be hit.

OTHER END OF TAP

"While to you, gentlemen, the proposed charge appears only as an opportunity to add a few thousand dollars a year to the city's revenue," the picture was somewhat different from the other end of the tap.

What Deep Cove people saw was the "closely populated and comparatively wealthy city of Victoria, without spending a cent or lifting a finger to earn it," imposing a tax on water "for which we now have to pay prices which would make a city householder shudder."

Minimum rates are $6.50 a month for 4,000 gallons, Mr. Clowes added, and in some parts $7.75 for 5,000 gallons.

Thieves Raid Two Homes

Two house calls made by thieves over the weekend netted little profit.

A Winchester rifle was stolen from the home of Les Thomas, 346 Linden. Entry was gained by the unlocked front door.

A thief who forced the rear door at Gordon Bell's home at 918 Hillside took about $25 and some cigarettes.

Stop, Pay Toll

Coin-operated gates have been installed at entrances to three parking lots at Royal Jubilee Hospital for visitors, doctors and employees. Dime in slot—or punched card for regulars—raises gate, as demonstrated by Mrs. Joan Ireland. Gates are not yet in operation.—(William Boucher)

Old Firm Closes

The oldest drugstore in B.C. closed its doors for keeps Saturday night.

Victoria Pharmacy, 1000 Douglas, went out of business after serving Victorians for more than 104 years.

The store moved to its present location from 1001 Government in March, 1964.

R. Herbert Davidson, owner of the pharmacy since 1947, said it was becoming increasingly difficult for the small pharmacist to remain in business because of competition from large chain and department stores.

His is the third drugstore to close down in the past two months.

He said there appeared to be only two ways in which the owners of small drug stores could operate: either become part of a big chain, or condense to strictly a dispensary.

He would not predict the future of the city's corner drug stores.

"There has been such a rapid change in methods of merchandising in the past three years in this city, that I would hesitate to make any statement on what may happen over the next three," he said.

"This is one of the poorest-paying businesses of the lot," he said. "The employees receive better pay than the owners."

CLEAN UP DETAILS

"After putting in a 70-hour week, an owner averages about $1.65 an hour," he added.

He said it would take approximately a week or 10 days to clean up the details of business.

"First we have to take care of the people's prescriptions that we have on file, and the stock of controlled drugs and narcotics have to be dealt with," he said.

OPENED 1861

The prescription files have been turned over to another retail drug outlet, and the drugs are to be handled by the food and drug inspector.

The old pharmacy was originally known as W. M. Seabury Pharmacy and opened on Government Street on Feb. 26, 1861.

"It is the oldest pharmacy in B.C., and I have letters to prove it," Mr. Davidson said.

All Functions Accepted

Sidney Goes All Out For Regional District

By JIM BRAHAN

Sidney is the only municipality in the Greater Victoria area so far to accept all functions proposed for the regional district of the capital of B.C.

All other municipal councils plan to put the proposed regional hospital program before the voters on Dec. 11, and some will be putting other parts of it as well.

At Monday night's council meeting, Sidney's acting chairman Andries Boas explained the reasoning behind the move.

He said that for more than a year, councils from Sidney to Sooke have been discussing the regional district services and the facts regarding the proposed regional district.

sary information about a regional district.

"If civic and administration leaders still do not know what the regional district is all about, the electorate can hardly be asked to vote on the matter of hospitals as a function of the regional district," he said.

"I for one am convinced that everyone involved, the civic leaders in particular, knows all the facts regarding the proposed regional district."

No Problem to Him

He said he had studied the hospital situation for more than three years, and to him there was no problem.

"The proposed regional district should take on the function of hospitals without reference to the electorate, for the simple reason that the board will have complete control of how much money it shall spend," he said.

"If the board decided to spend $1 or $5,000,000, no one could stop them, providing the expenditure did not exceed two mills."

The acting chairman said it was his opinion that the hospitals are a "must" and planning for them should be started now.

He said it will take two years before the plans can be completed, and in the meantime money could be put aside in the coming two years without any tax increase.

"I will make a suggestion to Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell to take the two-mill ceiling out of the letters patent and let council decide how much taxes should be levied for hospital purposes," he said.

He said it was his opinion that Sidney had no choice but to plan for a $2,500,000 hospital.

Can't Do It Alone

"The Sidney area alone can never put this money up," he said. "I have stated before that we are carried by the whole district and if we have to pay our share it would not amount to more than $10,000 a year."

"I feel we can pay this money without any increase of our current taxes," he added.

According to the acting chairman, the stumbling block appears to be the system of cost-sharing.

"It is my opinion the cost-sharing should not come into the picture at all," he said.

He said the cost-sharing scheme should be brought before the Union of B.C. Municipalities and worked out at that level.

"We should call for a special meeting of the UBCM to deal with this matter," he said.

The B.C. Hospital Insurance Service study and other surveys of hospitals in this area have recommended that Rest Haven Hospital be abandoned, and a new $2,640,000 hospital be constructed to replace Rest Haven.

The surveys noted that if a new hospital is not built to serve the northern part of the Saanich Peninsula, the hospitals will not be able to accommodate the increasing population of the North Saanich area.

Portable Polls Pusher

Persons unexpectedly in hospital will be able to vote in federal elections if Mrs. Judy Nyquist, right, gets her way. Signing petition is Mrs. Albert Selina, 919 Parklands, who lost vote because she was in hospital giving birth to baby Paul. Mrs. Nyquist, of 1849 Carnarvon, is seeking 5,000 names on petition demanding mobile polling booths in hospitals, nursing and rest homes and rehabilitation centres.—(William Boucher)

Cadboro Bay Girds For High-Rise War

Cadboro Bay ratepayers are once more out to shoot down a plan to build a high-rise apartment in their area.

More than 200 ratepayers unanimously approved a motion deploring all construction of high-rise apartments in the area. The motion added that ratepayers would resist by all constitutional means at their disposal.

One suggestion called for a referendum to be held each time rezoning of an area was proposed and requiring a majority of 60 per cent of the district voters.

LOBBY APPROVED

Newly-elected ratepayer president John Cox agreed but said in the case of the Cadboro Bay area, ratepayers already had a plan calling for the district to be zoned as a university district.

Use of lobbying as a means to get Saanich council's ear on the rezoning was approved.

The $4,800,000 cost mentioned in a letter circulated throughout the Cadboro Bay area was sharply criticized by ratepayer director Don Mathison.

POOR ARGUMENT

"The taxes in Victoria, four years ago were 53 mills and now they are 62.9. I don't think it's a good argument for keeping taxes down."

The property wanted for rezoning for apartments is a 10-acre site on Haro Road on the boundary of the University of Victoria.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my husband to the Other Woman. This is an old story and I hate to bore you, but maybe it will help someone else. It could happen to anybody tomorrow.

For two years I ate myself up with bitterness and hate. I had only one goal—to hurt them as much as they had hurt me.

I aged 10 years in two. Finally I became so ill I was unable to get out of bed. An internist suggested psychiatric help. I know now that I literally drove myself crazy.

A therapist opened my eyes. He said, "Look, your ex-husband and the Other Woman are happy as doves. He is the picture of health and she is radiant in her victory. You are bitter and sick. They aren't suffering from your vindictiveness. You are."

Today I am a well person. No longer do I harbor murder in my heart. I enjoy life. I wish them well.

What a fool I was! I didn't hurt them but I almost put myself in the grave. — EX-DUMMY

Dear Ex: I've said it before, but it's worth saying again. Hatred is like an acid. It can do more damage to the vessel in which it is stored than to the object on which it is poured.

Dear Ann Landers: May I add my nickel's worth to the rubarb about saying "God bless you" when a person sneezes?

Nobody in our family ever blessed a sneezer and it wasn't customary among our friends either. Then we moved to New York. My husband and I joined a church and I will never forget that first Sunday. It was during one of those silent periods of prayer when my husband let loose a window-rattling sneeze. All eyes were on him. He felt like crawling under the pew.

The kindly pastor, in a rich baritone, bellowed, "God bless you." A wave of quiet laughter swept the church. My husband felt an enormous sense of relief.

Now both my husband and I bless every sneezer. I think we are actually blessing the pastor who came to his rescue. CONVERTED GEZUNDHEIT-SRLS.

Dear Converted: Your pastor is not only a quick thinker but a true gentleman. God bless HIM.

Dear Ann Landers: You had a letter in your column from a woman who lives in La Crosse, Wisconsin. She said the dentist in La Crosse are so nice it's a shame everyone can't move up there. She described how she fell and broke the caps off her front teeth and her wonderful dentist rushed right down to his office on a Sunday to fix her up.

That letter must have been a phony. I don't believe anyone in La Crosse can afford capped teeth. We used to live there and it's impossible to make a living in that town.

There's no money in La Crosse. Business is lousy and industry is down at the heels. Maybe you can find a good dentist in La Crosse but a decent living is out of the question. — EX-RESIDENT.

Dear Ex: You must be crossed up on your La Crosse. La Crosse, Wisconsin, is one of the most progressive and prosperous cities in the nation.

In 1964 La Crosse was tenth in the United States in retail sales per household. Building permits in La Crosse this year exceed 12 million dollars. There are more than 200 manufacturers in La Crosse. The Wisconsin State Employment Service reports that unemployment in La Crosse has dropped to 3%. (The national average is a good deal higher.) Anyone who can't make a decent living in that city should be ashamed to admit it.

Festive Plans
It's not too soon to begin collecting tips for the holiday season. Once the festivities get into full swing it's wonderful to have a treasury of good food ideas for handy reference.

Souper Starter
Start off holiday suppers with a special Boule Soupe Soup. Combine a can of consommé soup and cream of pea soup with a soup can of water. Heat as usual, then just before serving top individual bowls with whipped cream and broil until the cream is lightly browned.

Holiday Alaska
Baked Alaska, a frankly showy dessert, takes to Christmas fixing easily. Try filling a 8-inch baked pie shell with 1 quart of soft-serve vanilla ice cream, and spoon 1 cup of your best mince-meat over top. Keep the pie frozen until serving time. Then cover completely with meringue, bringing it out to the edge of the pastry all around. Bake in a 450°F oven until the meringue is golden and serve immediately.

Cranberry Special
For Santa's helpers, a Cranberry Shake, adds a lift during the pre-Christmas rush. Just combine cranberry juice cocktail and vanilla ice cream and beat until smooth. Blender cooks can mix their own!

Sweet Nibbler
Why not renew the fine old art of candy making this Christmas? Our favorite recipe for Maple Pecan Fudge, calls for 3 cups brown sugar, 1 cup dairy sour cream and a pinch of salt. Boil this mixture over medium heat until the soft ball stage (238°F on a candy thermometer). Remove from heat and stir in 1/2 cup butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cool without stirring to lukewarm and beat until mixture begins to lose its gloss, add 1 cup of chopped pecans and quickly turn into a buttered pan. Dairy sour cream adds a distinctive flavor to this wonderful candy.

Freezer Reminder
Tender flaky shortbreads, made with butter, take kindly to the freezer. Why not bake up a batch or two now. Wrap them well in heavy duty foil and they'll keep until Christmas.

Party Parfaits
Folk will never guess you were short of time when you serve them pretty minted parfaits. For the sauce start with 1 1/2 cups bottled mint jelly; beat until smooth; then fold in 1 cup whipped cream. Layer in parfait glasses with vanilla ice cream. Quick and glamorous!

Dockyard Man To Seek Seat

A production supervisor at the naval dockyard will run for a two-year term on Saanich council in the December elections.

William A. Noel, 57, of 4301 Cedar Hill Road, filed his nomination papers for Saanich councillor Monday.

CLOSER SCRUTINY

He advocates closer scrutiny of the expenditure of the municipal tax dollar, and also an accelerated sewer program.

Noel

"Sewers are long overdue," he said. "We can't go on indefinitely living in the dark ages."

LIQUOR STORE

He said he will press for a liquor store in Saanich.

"A Saanich resident should be able to purchase wines or other alcoholic beverages within his own municipality," he said.

STANDARDIZATION

If elected, he said, he would move for a standardization of residential road widths.

"Many recently completed curbed streets are too narrow to allow parking and two-way traffic," he said.

GARBAGE ISSUE

He said Saanich should have an improved system of garbage collection, especially during the summer months.

He will also press for establishment of adequate library facilities.

don't skimp on the dry cleaning

You've bought a new suit. Smart, fashionable, expensive—and spotlessly clean.

A few weeks from now it will still look as good as new. But there will be one big difference.

From the day you take it home, unseen particles of dust begin to collect around the fibres. Dust attracts grime and shelters bacteria. Gradually it grinds its way in and the longer it stays the more damage it does. It weakens the weave, lessens the durability of the cloth.

Ordinary dry cleaning will remove most of this life-stealing dust and grime. But Daisy-Fresh Dry Cleaning (exclusive to Nelsons-New Method) will remove all of it. In effect, every time your new suit or any other clothing is dry cleaned by Nelsons-New Method it is restored to the same spotless condition it was on the day you bought it. It will stay cleaner, last longer, keep fresher.

So whatever you do, if you take pride in your wardrobe and want to protect your investment, don't skimp on the dry cleaning. Make it a promise to send your clothes regularly to Nelsons-New Method.

Whooping Cranes Now Number 44

WASHINGTON (AP)—The world's only wild whooping crane flock has set a new population record at 44, the U.S. Interior department announced Monday.

The old mark was 42, set last year.

This is the fourth consecutive year the whooper population has shown an increase.

The department announced the record total, although only 41 birds were counted in an aerial survey Sunday on and near the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Gulf Coast of Texas, the winter home of the flock. They spend the summer in northern Canada.

Bob Shields, manager of the refuge, reported there were 38 birds found in the area and three others were spotted a few miles northeast of the refuge. The three other birds in the total of 44 are somewhere in Texas, en route to Aransas, the department said.

These three were seen near the northwest Texas town of Panhandle Nov. 12 by Don W. Kriebel, a game management agent of the bureau of sport fisheries and wildlife. Although these three could possibly have reached Aransas in time to be included in the Nov. 21 count, the department said they are all adult birds and do not fit the pattern of adults and young counted in the Aransas area Sunday.

There also is the possibility that other birds are en route, the department said.

Navy Vouchers Not Offered To Obtain Two Cameras

One of two men charged with defrauding the Royal Canadian Navy decided on the witness stand Monday he offered naval petty cash vouchers for two cameras he obtained from a downtown store.

Charles Whyte, one-time Victoria city policeman, gave evidence claiming innocence on all five charges — four involving fraud and one of theft — which he and Lieut. Eric Haywood, formerly head of HMCS Naden photographic section, face in Victoria County Court.

SUSPENDED

Whyte said he had been suspended from duties without pay in June this year and was temporarily unemployed.

He recalled getting a 35-mm camera from Victoria Photo Supply and said he handed it to Lieut. Haywood for tests, but it was taken back to the company

because it had faults.

The store told him it could not send it back to the makers under warranty unless the camera had been sold, and Lieut. Haywood signed the warranty, said Whyte.

"I don't recall whether we got the camera back or not, but (the store) knew it was only on loan and we were not buying it," he said.

COMPANY OWES HIM

Whyte said he also obtained

self from Victoria Photo Supply, but had never been invoiced for it.

"It has always been a borrowing business," he said, adding that it had always been Victoria

Rhodesian Embargo 'Difficult'

LONDON (CP) — The British government sees grave difficulties in attempting to implement a United Nations resolution calling for an oil embargo against and termination of economic relations with Rhodesia.

Britain will attempt to confer with the world's oil exporters to determine whether an embargo against shipments to Rhodesia is feasible and decide its policy in the light of these talks, an official said.

Britain is Rhodesia's largest overseas market and Iran and Bahrain are its largest suppliers of oil, statistics made available at United Nations headquarters Monday show.

The statistics made clear where any disruption of trade, requested by the Security Council Saturday, would have an effect.

In Peking, British Charge d'Affaires Donald Hopson walked out of a state banquet Monday night in a protest against anti-British remarks on Rhodesia in a speech by Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

Africans Stage Protest Meet

BULAWAYO (Reuters)—Two thousand Africans staged a noisy demonstration in Mpopoma Township Monday night despite police efforts to break it up.

After a day of strikes in this industrial centre called by African nationalists over the country's seizure of independence from Britain 11 days ago, the chanting, shouting demonstrators lined both sides of a thoroughfare through the township, threw bricks, and tossed boulders and garbage cans into the road.

Five truckloads of police drove back and forth through the crowd which scattered but re-formed as soon as the police had passed.

Police with dogs ordered some Africans standing nearby to clear the street of the stones and garbage cans.

Among the vehicles which the demonstrators stoned were two cars carrying South African, British and American newspaper men and a car belonging to a local newspaper.

Strikes in Bulawayo and Gwelo Monday marked the first time since the country's seizure of independence from Britain that Rhodesian Africans have responded on a large scale to calls for a general strike.

Cong Hit Hard

By DONALD I. DEUTSCH

SAIGON (AP)—A large force of Viet Cong guerrillas took a blasting from land, sea and air Monday in an attack on a South Vietnamese ranger headquarters on the central coast. By nightfall, with their dead scattering the area, the enemy force pulled back.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials said they counted 200 Viet Cong bodies in and around the fort at Thach Tru, 320 miles north-east of Saigon.

SECOND ATTACK

Two U.S. Army men were killed in the assault, sprung before dawn. Government casualties were reported to have ranged from light to moderate. At the same time, about 1,000 other Viet Cong launched an attack on a South Vietnamese government regimental and artillery command post 40 miles northwest of Saigon. South Vietnamese officials said this attack also failed and 100 guerrillas were killed.

FIGHT LAPSES

Fighting in the Ia Drang Valley in the central highlands apparently lapsed. There were no reports of activity since clashes Sunday.

The Viet Cong force hitting the 500-man ranger headquarters at Thach Tru, 20 miles south of Quang Ngai, numbered about 1,500. Some wore buttons reading "Dien Bien Phu battalion," denoting the outfit that defeated the French in that northern city in 1954.

Mystery Maladies Strike Children

HONOLULU (AP)—Another Canadian child has become seriously ill aboard the British liner Canberra in the South Pacific, the United States Coast Guard said here Monday.

The child was identified as Renee Chaplin, 10-week-old daughter of Mrs. Barbara P. Chaplin, who boarded the Canberra in Vancouver two weeks ago with her three children.

Last Thursday, when the liner arrived in Honolulu, Billy Brown, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, formerly of Clinton, Ont., was taken off the ship seriously ill. Doctors said Monday he doesn't have pneumonia, as they had suspected, and they are mystified.

The coast guard said pneumonia and a collapsed lung were blamed for the illness of the Chaplin baby, who is to be taken off the liner by the coast guard cutter Cape Providence from Pago Pago, American Samoa.

TV TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

If I was a woman, and not necessarily a lady, I would sit down and write a letter to ABC-TV.

Dear Sir:
Thank you so much for deciding that the average housewife has a mental age of three.

For a while there
I thought you had lost sight of the fact, since you put the Young Set on every day.

After all, who wants to listen to people like Art Buchwald, Lena Horne, Gloria Swanson, Julius Feller and Budd Schulberg when you can tune in soap opera instead?

So I was happy to learn that you've cancelled the show as of Dec. 17. All that thinking was getting to be a strain.

And, oh, thank you so much for the replacements.
I can hardly wait.
Supermarket Sweep sounds divine. Imagine, special runners selected by contestants, racing around the food counters and scooping up as many groceries as possible in a given time. Such suspense!

The Dating Game sounds even better, particularly since you say it's a show that presents "attractive and eligible men and women with romance bachelors hidden behind a screen, and judging by their answers which one would make the best date. Then you give her the man of her choice a free night on the town.
How romantic.

It's really too bad all my friends and I won't be able to watch them, but we've found something even more stimulating. Every day we're going to turn off the TV set and go outside to watch them load the garbage truck.

That way we get the same content, and fresh air, too.

Mismanagement, Bureaucracy Soviet Problem

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Perhaps the biggest problem facing Soviet industry is how to curb bureaucracy and mismanagement.

Communist leaders have rallied against them from the time of Lenin but the problem only gets worse.

Recently the Soviet leadership signalled a new drive to cut away government red tape blamed for stifling efficiency at the factory level.

SIMPLICITY

"We must achieve utmost simplicity in the system of management of enterprises," Communist Party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev told a meeting of the party's central committee.

"We must go painstakingly through the structure of every ministry, either existing or newly formed, reduce the number of stages of management of the production activities of enterprises, so as to make the machinery of the ministries more mobile, capable of promptly, efficiently and in a competent manner settling all the problems of the operation of enterprises."

Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin, in separate reports to the committee, gave some striking examples of how the bureaucratic machine has hampered the strength of Russia's economy.

SIGNATURES NEEDED

Brezhnev told of the development by oilmen in the Volga area of a time-saving system for drilling oil wells with a turbodrill suspended on a flexible cable instead of with drill pipes.

"It would seem clear to everyone that this was a vital matter, but it took nearly a year just to agree on the schedule for the manufacture of the equipment and cable. Unfortunately it has not been agreed upon to this day because this matter required the signatures of 15 representatives of different organizations subordinated to state committees and economic councils."

CLEAR QUESTION

Brezhnev noted another instance in which 30 signatures from various departments were needed to approve one "clear question."

Kosygin told the committee that at the present time plans for new equipment are examined and drafted by one state organ, plans for production and capital investment projects by another, and supply matters are dealt with by still another.

LACK CENTRAL CONTROL

"There actually is no single organ that could examine all aspects and decide upon the issues of the development of an industry in all its variety."

Kosygin offered some startling data illustrating the utilization of assets through poor organization.

About half of all journeys by state-owned road transport are empty runs, he said.

Factories reach their planned production indexes, in a number of cases, only four years or more after they have gone into operation.

MISMANAGEMENT

The Moscow press frequently carries articles revealing often instances of bureaucratic mismanagement. One type not often written about was recently exposed by Pravda, the Communist party newspaper.

Cancellation of orders after production has started.

During the last two years factories of the electro-technical industry and apparatus building of Moscow economic council received refusals for more than 30,000 rubles worth of production, the account said.

In some enterprises refusals reach one-third of the annual amount of production.

Photographers Rap City's Disregard For Own Bylaws

The city disregarded its own bylaws recently when it allowed an employee to take night photographs in Centennial Square, a letter from the B.C. Professional Photographers Association claims.

Signed by association zone secretary Earl L. Aune, the letter refers to council's recent agreement to pay for equipment accidentally damaged when photographers were being taken by James Morant for what was then the Special Projects Division of City Hall.

The letter states that Mr. Morant does not hold a city license required by bylaw, which is a matter of direct concern to professional photographers in the area.

MANDATORY

Nor does he have a social and medical services tax licence from the provincial government, the letter added, pointing out which is mandatory in the city and the province.

"How does the city deal with a matter where there has been an obvious disregard for the provisions of its own bylaws, particularly by its own employees?" the letter asks.

"If these are common and continuing practices endorsed by the mayor and council, they are to be greatly deplored by any properly licensed business groups in the city who are subject to the provisions of the covering bylaw," the letter says.

EXPLANATION

The membership believes that a fuller explanation "should be made, Mr. Aune concludes.

The association complaint will be dealt with Thursday at the next meeting of city council.

High and Humble Remember JFK

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP)—At his hillside grave, in the snowy streets of West Berlin, in a Rio De Janeiro hotel—and in the Dallas streets where he was shot—the powerful and the humble paused Monday to commemorate the life and death of John F. Kennedy.

In churches of all faiths, from Boston to Los Angeles, Americans gathered for memorial services dedicated to the young president assassinated two years ago.

INTERFAITH SERVICE

President Johnson, whose presidency dates from the moment Kennedy died, recalled that time at an interfaith service in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in Fredericksburg, Tex.

"No one of us who lived on that terrible November day will ever be able to forget what happened then or what we lost there," Johnson said.

IN SECLUSION

In her New York City apartment Mrs. John F. Kennedy remained in seclusion on the second anniversary of her husband's death.

Rites Held All Over World

But the children, Caroline, 8, and John Jr., 5, went to school as usual.

FIRST REMEMBRANCE

Mrs. Kennedy's was the first floral remembrance placed Monday at the Arlington National Cemetery graveside. Her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, brought a bouquet of small white lilies, and placed the widow's offering at the base of the eternal flame that flickers over the grave.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts came early in the afternoon to place bouquets of white carnations and chrysanthemums.

IN BRAZIL

Kennedy's other brother, Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York, was in Brazil, midway through a South American tour. Some of his children, accompanied by a nursemaid, placed flowers on the grave Sunday.

All day long a stream of citizens came to Kennedy's Arlington grave to pay silent homage. Among them were Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, for 12 years secretary to Kennedy; and Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, a White House aide under Kennedy.

PLACED WREATH

Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach placed a presidential wreath of red and white carnations, dotted with tiny blue flowers.

As he fulfilled that mission for President Johnson, a bugler sounded taps on the damp hillside behind the grave.

BERLIN SQUARE

In West Berlin, clusters of people gathered in city hall square where, five months before his death, Kennedy moved Berliners to thunderous cheers by declaring himself one of them.

At the Hotel Gloria in Rio De Janeiro, foreign ministers of the American nations paid their tribute.

nia said Kennedy earned a place "as one of the great presidents of that country, as one of the most outstanding Americanists, and as one of the most illustrious men who have aided in making human life worth living."

In Dallas, a crowd of about 150 people gathered in the plaza across the street from the Texas School Book Depository, the building from which Lee Harvey Oswald fired the shots that killed the president.

TEXAN WREATH

A brief prayer service was held at the door to Parkland Hospital's Trauma Room 1, where Kennedy was taken after shooting. Chaplain Carl Nighswonger placed a wreath on the emergency room door, closed for the day in memory of Kennedy.

QUEST FOR PEACE

Former President Harry S. Truman issued a statement saying:

"Even now, after two years, it is hard to realize that it happened, but I hope that this tragedy in the life of this nation serves to re-emphasize President Kennedy's quest for peace and for international co-operation."

Two Shops Open In Mall

Two shops are open for business today in the shopping mall on the north side of Centennial Square.

Meanwhile, the landscaping in the square is nearly complete, and park benches were busy Monday planting bulbs so there will be a profusion of spring flowers.

Mayor Wilson cut a symbolic ribbon on Friday and the Hand Loom, a wool specialty shop operated by E. J. Higgins, and Colonial House Cuffens, a hairdressing shop owned by Mel Service, opened their doors.

There are five stores still to be rented.

Services Board Debate

The proposed regional services board for the Greater Victoria area will be topic under discussion at a public meeting to be held 8 p.m. Wednesday at Mount View High School.

A spokesman from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, one of the organizations sponsoring the meeting, said that the rally was being organized as "the issue of the board is one of the most important of the decisions the voters will have to make in the coming municipal election."

PANEL MEMBERS

Executive director of the Community Planning Association of Canada (B.C. division), Ted Rashleigh, will moderate a panel composed of Hugh Stephen, aldermanic candidate, P. B. Blewett, assistant administrator of St. Joseph's Hospital, Reeve Allan Cox, of Oak Bay and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Sponsoring organizations, in addition to the Junior Chamber, are the Community Planning Association, Saanich Information Committee, Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Association, and ratepayers' associations of Deep Cove, Elk Lake and Cadboro Bay.

RIO DE JANEIRO — Secretary of State Dean Rusk yesterday urged Latin America to accept the need for collective defence against communism. He implied that the alternative to collective action would be unilateral intervention by the United States.

Cars Not Wanted

Fourth Letter Joins Protest To Bastion Plan Change

A departure from the original concept of Bastion Square would be a bad thing and detract from the whole value of the beautification project, according to a letter written to Mayor Wilson by the Maritime Museum of British Columbia.

This is the fourth letter received at City Hall asking that the entrance to the square, designed originally as a pedestrian way, be retained.

Recently, after hearing representations from a merchant in the square and the manager of a bank branch adjacent to the square, aldermen ordered the city engineer to come up with a plan to make the entrance open to automobiles.

FIVE METERS

Entrance referred to is the short block on Bastion Street between Government and Langley. Aldermen were told that taking the five parking meters away and closing off the street to cars would be detrimental to business in the area.

When news of the possible change in the concept got around, a number of letters of protest came in to City Hall.

Three business firms, including the T. Eaton Co., wrote to say that there should be no change in the square concept. The letters said the arguments that the parking meters were needed was hardly valid when it was realized that there is a municipal parking building adjacent to the square.

ABOVE ESTIMATE

Recently tenders were opened for the square project. The lowest was found to be some $22,000 more than the $154,000 estimated by the city as the cost of the rehabilitation development.

The letter from the Maritime Museum, signed by Commodore A. G. Boulton, chairman of the board of trustees, says the board is disturbed at the news that there could be a change in the original concept.

Nonesuch Trio—Dennis Donnelly, Roberta Veal, Grant Crittenden

Guests in the Dungeon

Customary Dim Lights, Etc.

Songs are Live, Lively

By GUY STANLEY

If there's a dearth of live entertainment in Victoria, it's someplace other than the Dungeon coffee house.

Catering mainly to the university crowd, both students and faculty, the Dungeon is located in the basement coffee shop of the Student Union Building on the Gordon Head Campus.

Sort of a poor man's Cave, the Dungeon is in the tradition of smoky, dimly-lit rooms to drink coffee in while folk singers wall classical ballads, protest songs and hip ditties.

Occasionally poets drop in to read their latest.

Saturday night the Nonesuch trio, who call themselves a modern folk group, came down from Jim Johnson's Village coffee house at Quilcum for three sets. Louis Cap-son, a fourth-year Arts student, laid it down for two sets.

Neither trio nor poet were unusual, but they were relaxing, and that's what most of the audience mostly first and second-year university students, came for.

As smoke wafted around in the darkness, sometimes drifting into the yellow and red glow of the stage lights, they sat with their dates, some necking, not too much, some talking, not too much, and some just sitting sipping coffee or soft drinks. (The Dungeon serves the same food as students can buy during regular snack bar hours.)

Every now and then they would be moved to applause or laughter by a song. "I'm being eaten by a boa constrictor, and I don't like it one bit . . ." or the vitamin "C" songs, "Cocaine . . . running round my brain," were winners with the youthful watchers.

Korean Boy Kills 'Mother'

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A 13-year-old adopted Korean boy told police he killed his foster mother after he felt a sudden urge to shoot her. "I planned it for 15 minutes," he said. Mrs. Lola Carter, 51, was killed Saturday night by a .22-calibre rifle bullet in the face at their home.

The haul matched any since the wave of jewel and fur thefts began in London's West End and financial districts last year.

Like most of the recent raids, this one was carefully planned and executed. The bandits used complicated torches to cut through the steel surrounding the strongroom.

Carrington's concrete floor, concrete ceiling and special burglar alarm hooked up to Scotland Yard were not enough to stop the gang.

Police theorized the bandits bandits burned through this last barrier with the torches.

Fur and jewel thieves have struck with almost clockwork regularity in London in the last year or so.

Downtown furrers have lost more than $1,000,000 worth of goods to thieves within the last 21 months.

The largest recent gem haul also totalled $300,000. Diamonds worth that amount were seized from a merchant in January as he drove through the downtown diamond district in broad daylight.

Use of Warheads By NATO Depends on LBJ

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—The White House said Monday the North Atlantic allies of the U.S. have nuclear warheads but they cannot be used without specific authority of the president of the United States.

Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said in a brief statement that custody of nuclear warheads given NATO allies remains with the U.S.

Moyers' statement: "As has often been stated, we have made nuclear warheads available to our NATO allies, but custody of all such warheads remains with the U.S."

"President Johnson is, and as vice-president was, fully aware of the specific arrangements made by the department of defence with our NATO allies."

"As has often been stated no nuclear warheads on U.S. weapons or held in U.S. custody for our NATO allies can be used without specific authority of the United States."

Moyers released his statement without comment, but it appeared to be prompted by a New York Times story Sunday saying West German planes for years have been armed with nuclear weapons.

'Missing' Pilot Landed Safely

EDMONTON (CP) — Garry Moore of Chetwynd, B.C., reported missing on a flight from Edmonton on Chetwynd Sunday, has landed safely in the Volcanic River area of Northwestern B.C., the RCAF said Monday.

Moore's father, Gordon Moore of Chetwynd, told the RCAF he had heard from his son, who landed at a cabin near the junction of the Volcanic and Murray Rivers, when his Cessna 180 ran out of gasoline.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT

Occasionally, when browsing through a seed or plant catalogue, a name will catch my eye and I will start wondering about its origin. Tracing down these fascinating pursuit, often leading to stories of high adventure and incredible danger in far-off places.

This happened recently when I was drooling over some gorgeous color photographs of Buddleia davidi, probably the finest variety of Butterfly Bush. Who was Buddie? Who was David? What did they do to rate having their memory perpetuated in the naming of this lovely shrub?

Buddleia davidi was discovered in 1836 growing wild in the distant provinces of western China, high in the vastness of the Himalayan foothills close to the Tibetan border. It was introduced to western civilization by Father Jean Andre Soulie, one of those scholarly Jesuits who combined with their missionary work a study of the natural history and botany of the country to which they were sent. Shortly after his discovery, Father Soulie was beheaded by Chinese bandits at Paan.

His name could not be used for the new Butterfly Bush as it had already been pre-empted for certain other plants. Instead, the name Buddleia davidi is a curious reunion of members of sundried religious faiths. The Reverend Adam Buddie, in whose honor the genus was named, was an Anglican parson and distinguished amateur botanist who wrote a complete English Flora in 1708 and lies buried in St. Andrew's churchyard, Holborn.

No trace remains of Buddie's grave, as St. Andrew's was badly damaged in the bombing of London. An ancient Buddieia bush was spared, however, and flourishes still in the churchyard of the recently restored church.

The specific name, davidi, honors the memory of Father Armand David, later l'Abbe David, another missionary who worked in western China and collected many new plants there. The Dove Tree, Davidia involucreata, is one of his better-known introductions.

One curious mystery surrounds Buddieia davidi: Wherever the bombs fell in London, these lovely shrubs appeared. How did the seeds get there—seeds of a plant native to the west and most distant part of China? Did they come from country and suburban gardens? What agency carried them? Was it birds, the wheels of traffic, the wind? Or were they carried in the turned-up trouser cuffs of commuters?

However, they came, the seeds found the rubble of the bombed sites congenial resting places, and here they germinated. Growing lustily in barren spots where there was hardly any soil, the ruins were soon ornamented with strong Buddieia bushes waving glorious tassels of mauve in the heart of London, indifferent to smog, soot, traffic fumes, poor soil and complete neglect.

Boys Need Girls

JACK SMITH

Co-education, an institution in which I spent most of my tender years, is regarded with suspicion these days by some of our educators.

Recent surveys, says Prof. Bruce J. Kremer, of the University of Detroit, indicate that girls consistently get higher marks than boys, even though objective tests show that the boys know just as much, if not more, and are just as smart if not smarter.

Why is this? In an article in which he draws upon the findings of numerous researchers, including Wolesnik, Levine, Hanson, Rogers, Jersild, Reeder, Stevens, Combs and Snuggs, Prof. Kremer concludes that, when the marks are being passed out, teachers favor girls.

He reports that one pair of researchers worked from the "hypothesis . . . that masculine behavior (described as aggressive and generally more unmanageable than girls' behavior) will result in male pupils receiving a larger number of dominative or punitive contacts than girls, from their teachers."

That means, evidently, that boys, being rowdier than girls, are more often frowned at, rapped on the knuckles with a ruler, made to stand in the corner or otherwise punished, depending on the fancy of the teacher.

"It was also found," Prof. Kremer goes on, "that the boys recognized the fact that they are the recipients of a higher incidence of teacher disapproval."

This means that boys damn well know teachers like them less than girls and are more likely to rap their knuckles.

Meyer and Thompson have concluded, according to Prof. Kremer, that this situation is "anxiety producing" in the boys.

"If anxiety created in the school situation becomes sufficiently intense," they say, "it seems reasonable that tension reduction can be achieved by means of avoiding school."

This means that when a boy is finally fed up with injustice he drops out.

The question is—would boys do better in sexually segregated schools? I say no. They might get better marks. They might get fewer raps. They might not drop out so often.

But the disadvantage would be cruel. A boy would grow up in a one-sex world; only to be thrown in with the female of the species—quite unprepared—after his schooling was done.

This innocent lamb, venturing forth from the male world of fellowship, fair dealing, openness and honor, would be no match for woman with her sweet duplicity, her artifice, her indirection and subtlety, her talons and her tears, her plots and caprices and her witchcraft.

A boy might as well learn early to live with anxiety. I don't care what a Professor Wolesnik, Levine, Hanson, Rogers, Jersild, Reeder, Stevens, Combs and Snuggs find out. Girls are good for a boy.

Alain Horsed

SHEILAH GRAHAM

NEW YORK—(NANA)—Alain Delon never travels anywhere without his horse. And his horse will be flying to Hollywood where Alain will start his first western, Texas Across the River, with Dean Martin. Alain is now being measured for his cowboy clothes in Paris. In Paris?

Sophia Loren who isn't in Doctor Zhivago, attended the New York premiere last night. Why? Because her husband Carlo Ponti is the producer, that's why. Glamorous stars, boys and girls, were a dime a dozen—Omar Sharif, Julie Christie, Geraldine Chaplin, Sir Alec Guinness, Rod Taylor, Tom Courtenay and Rita Tushingham. But no one could outglamour Sophia. . . . Talking of Courtney, he's good as always in King Rat. And I liked George Segal much more in Ship of Fools.

The Gene Kellys leave for the snows of Switzerland next month. With the two children. Gene also has a date in London to film the TV pilot for 20th's Flying Dutchman. . . . Remember Tippe Walker, the lovelick kid in The World of Henry Orient? She was telling Jerome Hellman who directed her in the film that now she is so grown-up and all, she will be going to London next year to attend the famed Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Julie Harris has to repeat her role in the movie version of Skyscraper. Ditto Peter Marshall. Isn't Peter the brother of Joanne Dru? They look like two handsome peas in a pod. . . . Their friends are hoping that Sheila and Gordon Macrae can solve what seem to be problems. . . . Richard Harris is hoping to solve his lawsuit against the Mirisch Brothers. He claims that Hawaii took too long to make and that they still owe him some money. Richard received $300,000, and the brothers also paid off his remaining contract with ABPC in England.

Non-Self Counts

SYDNEY HARRIS

After attending the services for Paul Tillich—a fine man as well as one of the most influential religious thinkers of our time—I returned home and began rereading one of his books, Love, Power and Justice. I couldn't think of a better way to honor his memory.

In one of the early chapters, he speaks of the power of life as "self-affirmation." Life is divided between the self and the non-self; what makes a life truly powerful is the ability of the self to include the non-self in it, without being destroyed by it.

The neurotic, he pointed out, can include only a little non-self in his self-affirmation; the average man, a limited amount;

the creative genius, a large amount. What does this mean in specific terms?

Shakespeare immediately comes to mind. In what does his great power of life lie, his immortality, his transcending appeal, his overcoming the barriers of translation and different cultures?

It was not merely his literary genius as such. His poetry is great, of course, but language alone cannot account for his transcendent popularity among all people everywhere who have come in touch with his works. There is something more basic in his plays, beyond poetry, beyond literature, beyond all intellectual and esthetic categories.

It is, indeed, his capacity to include a superlatively large amount of non-self in his self-affirmation. While there are some characters in the plays that he obviously prefers to others, there are more that he does not in some way sympathize with, that he cannot absorb into his own nature and understanding.

What we loosely call "the power of empathy" was stronger in him than in any other literary figure. Like Terence (only with more justification), he could say, "I am a man, and therefore nothing human is alien to me." He was not censorious, did not judge men as we judge them, did not assume that even the darkest villain was a creature different in kind from himself.

Shakespeare had his own standards of rectitude and morality, of course; but while he abhorred certain qualities and deplored certain weaknesses, he was not willing to indict a total personality.

How easy it would have been, for instance, to depict Shylock as the stock figure of fun in the 16th century; and how impossible for Shakespeare not to turn the stage Jew into a man who bleeds just like anyone else.

The more non-self we are able to include in our self-affirmation, the more power of life we have; for all life is a striving toward reunion with the separated. Beyond theology, this was Tillich's most profound reminder to our generation of coldly separated egos.

ERMA BOMBECK, Hostess with Leastest

Too Utterly Utt for Her

Some naive book publisher has just sent me an advance copy of a new book called, Company's Coming.

It tells me the secret to gracious entertaining is planning, organization and relaxation. In the back of the book is an index card for frequent guests—listing their food preferences, allergies, children's names, what they were served the last time they were guests, and what the hostess wore.

This may be utterly utt for the woman who takes her entertaining seriously, but, my friend, you are dealing with the Tugboat Annie of Lower Suburbia!

There is only one reason uppermost in our minds when we stage a party . . . it's an incentive to clean and patch up the house!

When we reach a point where we can no longer dig out, we simply announce, "Let's give a party." My husband knocks out their beds, disposing of a garage-full of bottles and returning the library books. I have my own busy work. I discard all the jelly glasses and replace them with "matched" crystal, exchange all the dead house plants for new ones from the nursery and of course plan a menu and guest list.

This, I try to keep simple (the guests, not the menu). I always invite a few "live ones" like the man who has it on good authority that Santa Claus is a subversive and a rebellious neighbor who is advancing a theory that the local PTA is a private-key Bunny Club with a good "cover."

The afternoon of the party goes like clockwork. The kids eat all the olives and leave bite marks in the capes. I trim these back to their original shape with a pair of sharp scissors (Which my son announces he cut his toenails with the night before.) Someone always remembers to close the draft in the fireplace. This is a "must" at our parties. We build a roaring fire and then herd our guests into the cold street to watch the fire trucks provide an evening of entertainment.

Another tradition at our parties is the wet, picture frame. We always manage to paint or varnish one at the 11th hour and invariably a guest becomes stuck to it. (They are cut away with the same scissors used for the toenails and capes.)

The evening of the party, however, is perfection itself. As I take the key off my belt to unlock the hall bath (which has been "out of bounds" since the previous Tuesday), I smile easily and ask, "Where are the kids?"

"I mailed them to my mother," says my husband. "Good thinking," I sigh, relaxing in a chair . . . just like the book says.

Bennett Due In Court

Premier Bennett will appear in court Thursday to face preliminary examination in a slander suit brought against him by G. E. P. Jones, former B.C. purchasing agent.

The pre-trial examination for discovery will be conducted in private by Tom Berger, counsel for Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones launched the suit against the premier in Vancouver Supreme Court last March. The tentative date for trial there is Dec. 28.

In July, Mr. Jones filed a statement of claim in which he alleged that Mr. Bennett slandered him during a Social Credit Association meeting in Victoria on March 3. Mr. Jones was removed from the office of purchasing commission chairman on March 28.

U.S. Jets Hit Launch Pad

'Control' Office Bombed

VIENTIANE (UPI)—North Viet Nam charged Monday U.S. jets bombed the offices of the International Control Commission and the New China News Agency in the Laotian town of Khang Khay Saturday.

Trust Companies 'Invited Catastrophe'

TORONTO (CP)—Trust companies were inviting a "national catastrophe" when they refused to help British Mortgage and Trust Co. out of its financial troubles last summer, Harold Lawson, former caretaker president of British Mortgage, said Monday.

He told a meeting of the Canadian Club of Toronto if the Stratford, Ont., trust company had gone under after it suffered capital losses in the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. in June a general panic could have started among bank and trust depositors.

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Air Force jets blasted two Soviet-made missile sites northwest of Hanoi Monday, hitting one missile while it was still on the launching pad, a military spokesman announced.

In the ground fighting, a large force of Viet Cong guerrillas took a pounding from land, sea and air in an attack Monday on a South Vietnamese ranger headquarters on the central coast. By nightfall, with their dead scattered around the area, the enemy force pulled back. (See Page 22.)

SITE DESTROYED

One of the missile sites, 34 miles northwest of Hanoi, was destroyed, the spokesman said. A huge sheet of fire lashed across the site where the missile was hit by the launching pad.

At the other installation, 41 miles northwest of the North Vietnamese capital, radar equipment was destroyed.

HEAVY FIRE

The surface-to-air missile sites were the 16th and 17th struck by U.S. planes since July. The spokesman said the pilots encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, but returned safely.

During Work Hours Thursday

By BARRY JOHNSON

A mass meeting of all trade unionists—during normal working hours—has been called by a general strike co-ordinating committee of the Victoria Labor Council.

The plan to call the meeting was formulated at a meeting of the committee Monday at Union Centre.

It calls for all Greater Victoria trade unionists to attend a mass meeting beginning at 9 a.m. Thursday, the day marking the beginning of the 48-hour strike being urged by the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Committee chairman John Schibli, organizing chairman of the labor council and a member of the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union, said the meeting is to "explain the issues involved in the oil strike."

When it was suggested that if workers were at the meeting, they would not be at their jobs, Mr. Schibli said, "That is the inference."

The mass walkout in support of Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' fight for protection against layoffs due to automation, has been denounced as illegal by government and industry leaders.

The federation has had mixed success in its promotion of the mass walkout. Some unions have said they will not support the strike, several are known to be wavering and many are still undeclared.

The 11,000-member B.C. Teamsters Council said it has decided "not to participate in any illegal strike action."

At the same time, the union declared it would not "haul, handle or use" any petroleum products, thereby assuring stoppage of all major trucking in the province if the strike materializes.

Victoria Local 1-118 of the International Woodworkers of America said it would support the strike. "Either we stand idly by and watch an affiliated union be destroyed... or we take a stand."

"We stand on the side of the oil workers."

Sentencing Today

Robinson Admits Slaying

By GORDON DODD

David Leonard Robinson answered "guilty" Monday when asked how he pleaded to a charge of non-capital murder at Victoria Assizes, thus ending the prospects of a two-week trial for which 56 Crown witnesses had been assembled.

Robinson

The nude, bound body of schoolgirl Susan Freschi, 14, was found in bush country behind the Six Mile House beer parlor May 12.

PANEL DISMISSED

Mr. Justice George Gregory dismissed the 44-member jury panel after the plea of guilty was entered and adjourned the trial until 11 a.m. today at the request of Crown prosecutor William McIntyre.

Mr. McIntyre will relate the circumstances of the case and Alan Bigelow will appear for Robinson, after which Mr. Justice Gregory is expected to pass sentence.

LESSER CHARGE

The 24-year-old janitor had been committed for trial on a charge of capital murder, which carries the death penalty, but only the lesser charge was read to him Monday as he stood smartly attired in a suit, white shirt and dark tie in the prisoner's box behind counsel Alan Bigelow.

Robinson, a married man, had been in custody for the killing since May 26, with the exception of two days of freedom at the end of September. Then, he and 19-year-old fellow prisoner Stanley Heron escaped from Colquitz Jail.

FLED JAIL

A key was smuggled into the jail, enabling the two men to flee through a padlocked fire escape.

As a result, a big-scale search was mounted, extending to the mainland, before the dirty, dishevelled twosome were trapped late on the third night of their escape under Craigflower Bridge.

Robinson got four months for escaping, Heron nine months. That was on Sept. 25.

Now it is the events that sparked that earlier manhunt

Janitor Fourth in Canada To Plead Guilty to Murder

It is a rare event in Canada for a man to plead guilty to murder, giving up his right to trial.

David Leonard Robinson's admission at the outset of his sabbat appearance was only the fourth time in Canadian history such a plea had been taken, the third in B.C., according to Cecil Clark, former commissioner of B.C. police and local author of many articles on criminal history.

Normally, an automatic plea of not guilty is entered and a jury is called upon to decide the issue.

Mr. Clark says the first time a man pleaded guilty to the charge in Canada was at the turn of this century. A Chinese, Yip Luck, confessed to the axe-slaying of Steveston Chief of Police Charles Main, and was hanged.

In fact, he narrowly escaped lynching, Mr. Clark recalls.

The public were so angered by what he had done to their police chief, who had been merely inquiring about some stolen carpenter's tools, that Yip Luck had to be whisked from his prison on Lulu Island to New Westminster.

Sixty-five-year-old Arthur Cunningham was also hanged. In 1922, he pleaded guilty at his trial to shooting dead a 72-year-old pensioner in a shack at Endako, 100 miles west of Prince George, for the sake of a small monetary gain.

Cunningham's victim was found shot in the back and frozen stiff outside the shack.

Cunningham had previously been suspected of murder at Jasper, but on that occasion the court could not find sufficient evidence to convict him.

Mr. Clark says the other case, where a plea of guilty was entered to murder, was in Ontario around 1935. The charge of non-capital murder, which does not carry the death penalty, was not in existence at the time any of these pieces of criminal history occurred. Thus Robinson is the first in Canada to plead guilty to it.

B.C. Village For Sale

100 MILE HOUSE (CP)—Lord Cecil, the only man in British Columbia to own an entire village, has put it up for sale.

Lord Cecil, 56, has offered to sell 100 Mile House in the B.C. Cariboo to its leaseholders.

There were reports the leaseholders thought the asking prices were too high. Lord Cecil said in an interview Sunday they were set by professional appraisers on the basis of current market values.

Lord Cecil's family has owned the square mile on which the village of 1,200 stands since 1912, when his father, the Marquis of Exeter, bought it.

Eight Wade To Freedom

BONN (Reuters)—Eight East Germans, including a woman, waded through knee-deep snow across mine fields and climbed barbed-wire fences to escape into Lower Saxony in West Germany during the weekend, it was reported Monday.

Lord Cecil said Monday he agreed years ago to sell the village to its inhabitants once 100 Mile House was incorporated under the B.C. Municipal Act. It was so incorporated this year.

Labor Calls Workday Meeting

In Port Alberni, president Walter Allen of Local 1-85 said there is "no opposition" to the proposed strike.

The IWA's prime employer in Port Alberni, MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River, served notice to the union that strike action would "definitely be breaking its master contract" with the company.

The "penalties involved" were outlined in a letter sent to Local 1-85 by the company.

United Paper Makers and Paper Workers, Tye Local 586, in two secret ballots voted in favor of staying on the job.

Jack Campbell, president of the 240-man local, said, "We are very sympathetic toward the oil workers and will support them financially. But the men do not wish to break their own contract."

B.C. division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees—federal civil servants—urged its members to support the strike, saying, "We recognize the gravity of the pending work stoppage and its impact on the economy of the province."

In a telegram to Premier Bennett, Labor Minister Peterson, Opposition Leader Strachan and Liberal leader Perrault, the union asked that the oil workers' three-month strike notice deadline be extended.

William Thompson, head of the inside workers' union at University of Victoria, said his union opposes the strike threat as "irresponsible and foolish" and contrary to its contract's no-strike clause.

Hotel employees in the Alberni will vote Wednesday on a proposal that they shut down cocktail bars and beer parlors but maintain room service.

Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers voted last week to support the strike.

The 200-man International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union will also vote Wednesday.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has directed its members to report to work as usual.

The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority warned its 6,000 employees they face indefinite suspension and possible dismissal if they are absent from work without authorization during the time of the proposed walkout.

The Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers, B.C. Hospital Employees' Association, Canadian Postal Workers' Association and Federated Association of Letter Carriers have stated they will not join the strike.

Newspaper unions in Victoria and Vancouver are to vote today. Some have already voted but are withholding the outcome.

A. W. Tunc, Victoria mayor-elect candidate, said Monday he "could not and would not condone an extension of the oil workers' dispute to a general work stoppage."

As a candidate, he said, "I must obviously affirm my absolute belief in rule of law."

"The general work stoppage would be an illegal act."

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said Monday that British Columbia is the battle, and for the inter-province oil strike and that the next 24 hours will be "a very critical 24."

He said representatives of management and the oil workers' union from Ontario are here "and at the moment, any possibility of settlement should be in British Columbia."

Asked what chance there is for a settlement of the dispute before Wednesday midnight strike deadline and a call by the B.C. Federation of Labor for a two-day boycott of petroleum products throughout B.C., the labor minister replied, "I would not want to venture any comment at this stage."

He met union leaders in Vancouver Saturday, and spoke long-distance Monday with government officials in Ontario. He said he might return to Vancouver Monday night or today.

The labor minister added that "as long as the meetings are taking place, we are hopeful a settlement will be reached and there will be no strike."

Mr. Peterson said the government is willing to do anything it can to help the situation, and has offered to establish an industrial inquiry commission if the strike is called off.

"WHAT POINT?" But the government has received "no encouragement as yet . . . and I won't appoint an industrial inquiry commission if the strike continues."

What would be the point? Mr. Peterson said he had never dismissed the idea of a commission, but that up to now labor has asked for "nothing apart from mediation."

Labor Minister Peterson also said the oil workers could extend their Wednesday strike deadline "if they wished."

Under provincial legislation a union must call a strike with three months of giving strike notice to its employers.

He said the oil workers' deadline is not up until Dec. 7. The union says it expires Wednesday midnight.

The deadline can also be extended through mutual agreement between union and company, Mr. Peterson said.

An oil workers' spokesman said the minister is interpreting the labor legislation differently now from the way he did when the union made inquiries about it in the past.

Meanwhile, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Ald. Millard Mooney and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association came out in strong opposition to the threatening general strike.

In a telegram to Premier Bennett and Mr. Peterson, the chamber stated that it "condemns in the strongest possible terms the proposed province-wide, illegal work stoppage which threatens not only the economy of this province but the welfare of the general public."

"The Victoria Chamber of Commerce stands for the observance of and compliance with the laws of this province and emphatically deprecates any departure therefrom," the telegram stated.

"This chamber sincerely hopes that wiser council will prevail and that a strike will be avoided. The Victoria Chamber of Commerce considers that it should be no uncertain terms voice its complete opposition to this threat to the sanctity of contracts and to the flouting of the laws of this province."

STRONG EXCEPTION Mr. Mooney, senior alderman on city council, said that "if the proposed two-day general strike in B.C. is carried out, the whole economy would suffer."

"I am satisfied the great mass of labor feels the same as I feel. History has shown such action to be wasteful and damaging to the whole community and its citizens. I firmly believe that no government should be dominated by pressure groups of any kind."

The CMA asked its members to require employees to work during the general strike.

Janitor Admits Killing Girl

on which Robinson awaits punishment.

They began May 11. The girl from California, Susan Freschi, finished her classes at St. Ann's Academy, went on to a riding lesson at the Victoria Riding Academy and caught the bus that would take her in the direction of home.

SEARCH STARTED Now police switched their search for the murderer.

Investigators received leads in the hundreds. But they appeared to be bearing little fruit until Robinson was taken into custody by Oakwood RCMP May 26.

LONG HEARING Robinson was committed for trial after a long, drawn-out preliminary hearing, at which police testified he was questioned about the matter continuously for 12 hours before being charged with capital murder.

But before he admitted his guilt before a judge, there was to occur one more strange event in the life of David Robinson.

And that afternoon came the discovery of the girl's naked body in a small clearing amid the undergrowth covering the area of the Old Island Highway and Atkins Road.

Mental Breakdown 'Survivor' Urges Love, Understanding

By JOSEPH MOLNER MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Five years ago I had a complete mental breakdown and was sent to a sanatorium. The conditions had been building up for years, of course. Later I was told I had schizophrenia.

After I had been there two months the doctor decided to give me electric shock treatments because I wouldn't or couldn't come out of my little dream world. I had three treatments a week for four weeks.

I believe this was the turning point in my illness. I don't mean the shock treatments cured me, because I still had several months of hard work ahead of me, but they put me on the right road.

Oh, they have their drawbacks, the same as everything else.

I wish I had the ability to write so I could tell people what it means to be mentally ill—how love and understanding are needed by the patient. Most of my family will not even admit that I was mentally ill.

Before I had the breakdown I would go home and get a razor blade and cut my legs. I will always carry the scars. I learned later that I was really trying to hurt the people who I thought were trying to hurt me. Keep up the good work and try to make your readers understand that although someone is mentally ill, he or she needs love more than ever. It might make the difference between coming back to reality or staying in the nice safe dream world where you can't be hurt and nothing or no one can get to you.—MRS. L.C.

I've been trying to present some of these same ideas, but people may learn more, hearing it from you, than from me.

First, the mental patient (at certain stages, and in many cases) is aware of the illness and may, or may not, want to be cured.

DRAWBACKS Second, many patients strongly dislike shock treatment, and I can't blame them. There are, as you say, drawbacks. They are scary and can be uncomfortable. Let's not pretend that shock treatments are a picnic.

Neither are some medications, or operations. The point is that the benefits outweigh the discomforts.

Third, love is superlatively important. Relatives and friends may not fully understand what goes on in the patient's mind. How could they? Mental illness is, a very lonely experience. But love and helpfulness and consideration can make the difference between staying well, after recovery, or slipping back. Thank you, Mrs. L. C. for writing. Tomorrow I will print a letter of a different type of mental illness, a case that did not come out as well. It ended tragically. It, too, points a lesson.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the causes (other than mono-pause) of sudden feeling of intense heat, so I perspire all over my body for brief periods several times a day? And frequently on rising in the morning? Can medication relieve this? I am 43.—MRS. R. G.

This description has all the classic signs of "hot flashes," which can be alleviated or prevented by medication. Offhand, I think of no other cause that fits this pattern. (Night sweats are another matter, and often are caused by some undiscovered infection.)

New Hospital Wing Already In Use, Opens Next Month

LADYSMITH—The 13-bed new wing at the Lady-smith General Hospital had to be put into use before the official opening which is hoped to take place in the latter part of next month.

Including the new wing the hospital with a total capacity of 43 beds, has an occupancy of 80 per cent.

As the need arises more beds will be available in a shell of the new wing. Except for the ground floor in the new wing and the 100-kilowatt stand-by generator, ordered last May but not delivered, the $23,000 construction and alteration job at the hospital is complete.

Meanwhile, several donations were received for the hospital. The Women's Auxiliary gave 16 overbed tables and the same amount of bedside tables costing $2,330.

The Ladysmith Lions club has donated the furnishings for eight cots in the pediatric ward, the local Legion branch sponsored a two-bed private room and A. R. Glenn sponsored a private room.

DUNCAN—Driving while impaired and suspended cost Lawrence Harris of Ladysmith $300 Monday.

For his fourth offence of driving without a licence William Tammy of Kokalah was fined $50 and his right to obtain a licence was suspended for three months.

COURTENAY—RCMP Constable Barry Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Shaw, has been selected as a member of the famous RCMP Musical Ride which will tour Canada and overseas during the centennial celebrations.

COOMBS—The communities of Coombs and Hilliers will be given fire protection, following the formation of a volunteer fire department.

The purchase of a fire truck for $1,800 and some two dozen firemen volunteering their services, has got the department off to a good start. Oakes, Mrs. George Oakes, Mrs. George Ward and Miss Gloria McMillan.

LADYSMITH—Six-year-old Sharon Ross of Cowichan Station was treated for cuts at the hospital here and released following a two-car collision Sunday on High St. and 2nd Avenue. The girl was a passenger in a car driven by her mother, Mrs. Mary Evelyn Ross. The other driver was George W. Neske of Ladysmith. Police estimated damage at $700.

COURTENAY—A fire which apparently started in a bake shop and spread to the adjoining shoe shop, was brought under control by firemen early Sunday evening.

The fire spread from the Masters' bakery to Searles shoe store. Extensive damage was caused to stock upstairs and there was water damage to the store but it was business as usual Monday morning.

PARKSVILLE—The Church of the Good Shepherd on Lasqueti Island has been added to the Anglican Parish of this district in the care of Rev. Eric Blackstock. Mr. Blackstock recently spent two days on the island visiting and holding services.

Nanaimo Socreds Switch Officers

NANAIMO—Only Al House of Gabriola Island survived a shake-up in the Social Credit organization here Friday.

After more than five years of heading the Nanaimo association Cyril Dawkin was defeated by David Walters for the presidency.

Other members of the new executive are Lyle Wilkinson, who recently fought the federal election for the party, Jack Geisler, Clyde Coats, Mrs. Barbara O'Shaughnessy and Al House.

Mr. Dawkin denied there was any dissension among local Socreds.

He said "This is just a young group and we're trying to push the young ones ahead."

"I'll still be on another year in a certain capacity to help them."

Nanaimo Yachtsmen

Islanders Seek World Crown

NANAIMO—Two Nanaimo yachtsmen have been chosen to represent Canada in the world championship 505 Regatta in Australia in March.

They are Mike Pope and Hugh Heath.

The Nanaimo Yacht Club members will be training from now till they leave for down-under, and they are expecting their toughest competition to come from France, the United States and the Australians themselves.

Mr. Pope is an experienced skipper in international competition, having represented Canada in the North American fur championships this summer in San Francisco.

He has wide racing experience.

The first building was erected at Spuzzum in 1848 as depot for the Hudson's Bay Company fur brigade. A ferry was established here in 1858, crossing the the 505 class.

Crewman Heath is better known as a Lightning class skipper, and will be working hard to pick up the 505 techniques.

Although Mr. Pope is a manufacturer of fiberglass 505's the Canadian entry will use an Australian-built boat in the world championship.

The Australians are providing all the boats for competitors in the interests of uniformity.

It's a Lovely Drive to Port Hardy—So They Tell Him

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

Yes, Virginia, you can drive from Victoria to Port Hardy. The stretch to Courtenay is easy.

But the Upper Island Sports Car Club proved you can make it to Port Hardy, at night, in the rain, through much, over frosty bridges, and catching a lot of side roads in the way.

The event was the Courtenay-based club's annual Tye rally. More than 30 drivers and navigators, piloting cars ranging in size from Minis to Volvos, started driving at 10 p.m. Saturday and kept at it until late Sunday afternoon.

The tough rally covered more

This brought some crack teams from the mainland, whipping through mud, signing in at a gate on the road to Beaver Cove, and breakfasting at Port Hardy.

On the way, there was a spectacular panorama of forest, river, mountains, and rugged island scenery.

The rally dramatically proved island thoroughfares are being opened, and they can be travelled by small, low-clearance cars.

Astute readers will note the above story is written in the impersonal third person.

"They" had a spectacular view. "They" breakfasted in Port Hardy. "They" enjoyed the island scenery.

This is so, even though this writer, with driver Roly Achurch, were in competing car No. 12.

But our spectacular panorama

1 a.m. somewhere west of Campbell River; muffler sounds funny. Heater is cutting out. Cold. Lost.

2:30 a.m., somewhere north-west of Campbell River, muffler fell off. Rain. Cold. Lost again.

3:30 a.m., road to Port Hardy, mileage crazy. Heater packed up. Freezing cold. Teeth chattering.

4 a.m., somewhere. Cliff on one side of the road, nothing down there but blackness. Instruction sheet has stopped making sense.

5 a.m., a few miles south of Beaver Cove, muffler fell off. Thrown in trunk. Heater quit for good. So did we.

All that's left of Mrs. Rumble's house

Outside Firemen Volunteer -- Too Late

Widow's House Razed In Unprotected Saltair

By KLAUS MUENTER

SALT AIR—A long-time Saltair resident, Mrs. Verna Rumble, lost her home in a fire Saturday even though two volunteer fire departments were within easy reach.

Not protected by the Ladysmith fire department nor by the Chemainus fire brigade the large, 55-year-old home of Mrs. Rumble burned to the ground in a fire that lasted almost seven hours.

Most of the elderly widow's furniture and other belongings were carried from the house before it collapsed. No one was injured.

The house was insured and Mrs. Rumble is staying with friends in Nanaimo. Several Saltair residents feel the loss of the house was unnecessary and they are painfully aware that their unorganized area is not protected by any fire department.

They say if a fire truck had come promptly the home would have been saved. RCMP at Ladysmith attended the fire shortly after it had broken out, presumably in the attic.

Unable to reach it because of thick smoke the RCMP called for help and the Ladysmith fire department sent out a rescue truck.

Ladysmith fire chief Harry Blair, who remained at Ladysmith with the town's fire-fighting equipment, was asked half an hour later by his deputy chief to send out the fire truck. He complied reluctantly.

Can't Run All Over

In the meantime, the blaze had burned beyond control.

Chief Blair said Monday the house is located one mile outside the Ladysmith fire protection district and the town's firemen went out strictly on a voluntary basis.

He said if the call for help had come from a private Saltair citizen and not from the RCMP he would not even have dispatched the rescue truck.

He said, "We have to stay within our boundaries, you just cannot run all over the country."

Opted Out

Ladysmith fire chief Blair noted that Saltair people "apparently do not want fire protection because when they were asked to amalgamate with North Cowichan they voted against it."

He referred to a vote taken in July when Saltair residents voted 265 against 77 for merging with the North Cowichan municipality.

Until then the Saltair area had been covered by Ladysmith and Chemainus volunteer fire brigades each taking about half the area.

Saltair resident W. H. Olsen said the Saturday fire in a way is ironic because the widow's husband, Fred Rumble, while a member of the Saltair Ratepayers' Association about five years ago, pushed for fire protection from Ladysmith or both, but it never materialized.

Mr. Olsen suggested the Saltair water board should go ahead and obtain fire protection for the district. Another Saltair resident, G. B. Motherwell, described the fire Saturday as "a damned disgrace."

He said "before the amalgamation vote there was never any argument of the Chemainus fire department attending fires in the Saltair area."

He stressed the Saltair people would be glad to pay for fire protection but they are reluctant to merge with the North Cowichan municipality just for the sake of this protection.

Learned Lesson

Mr. Motherwell charged, "If the almighty dollar takes precedence over people's lives and property it has gone pretty far."

Chemainus fire chief M. A. Rubynuk said his department was approached Saturday to attend the fire and some of the firemen went on their own to help.

He said neither of the department's two trucks was dispatched. "We are not allowed to leave our area and neither men nor equipment are covered if they fight fires in Saltair."

Another Saltair taxpayer said,

"I hope Saltair people have learned their lesson and will do something about fire protection."

North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton meanwhile stated that talks are in process for fire protection for the southern part of Saltair to be covered by the Chemainus department.

He said, "I understand the Saltair people are quite willing to pay for it."

The reeve said before any final decision can be made the Saltair taxpayers must form a fire protection district with defined boundaries.

The project is being sponsored by Salt Spring Island Lions' Club and will consist of 11 duplexes containing 18 single and four double suites, in addition to a laundry and storage facilities. Nanaimo Aldermanic Race

Teacher In Running

NANAIMO — Vice-principal of Woodlands Junior High School, Peter McLoughlin, announced Monday he will be a candidate for alderman in the city elections Dec. 11.

In an election statement Mr. McLoughlin, 38, made side-walks his main target.

He said he was tired of hearing complaints about school children walking on the roads.

NO WONDER

"Where else can they walk?" he asked. "In Nanaimo we condition small children to the idea the road is the place for them to walk. No wonder they develop a lack of respect for traffic. Roads are for cars not pedestrians."

"As a driver I am really scared that I'm going to injure a pedestrian. As a parent of two small children I am terrified."

"I am proud of Nanaimo," he concluded, "but my elvish pride buckles a bit when I show visitors around, and they ask why we don't get rid of the open ditches within city limits. Nanaimo is a prosperous, progressive city but our open ditches, the lack of curbing, and the absence of sidewalks make us look poor."

ENGLISH CURRICULUM

Mr. McLoughlin is both a past president of the Nanaimo district teachers' association and vice-president of the B.C. Teachers' federation.

Three years ago he was appointed by the provincial government to help plan and write the new English curriculum for all high schools.

Other declared contenders in the aldermanic race in Nanaimo are Ald. Ted Barsby, Walter Tickson, and Ken Alexander.

There are three vacant seats. So far no one has come forward to challenge Mayor Pete Maffeo for the top spot on the council.

Youngsters Plan Bellringer Drive

DUNCAN — The Duncan Teen-Towners go ahead with their community hall project and 100 members Nov. 27 will conduct a house-to-house canvass to raise funds for a proposed prefabricated building to cost between $20,000 and $30,000.

Teen-Town adult supervisor Jim Quail said the youngsters will go out in groups of six and will have identification.

Earlier this month Mr. Quail announced his group decided to take the initiative in building a hall for the benefit of all members here and surrounding communities.

Mr. Quail said Friday, "The City of Duncan and North Cowichan councils have made reference that someone must take the leadership in recreation and the Teen-Town has offered this leadership providing there will be a joint meeting with two councils to discuss the development of a complex for recreational use."

Trustee Is In Running For Council Seat, Too

NORTH COWICHAN — School trustee for the past two years Dr. Neil Dornan not only decided to run again for his seat on the school board but for a North Cowichan councillor seat as well.

He said, "I want to make sure ratepayers in the entire municipality will have their say on the council."

So far six candidates are lined up for three North Cowichan councillor seats including three incumbent councillors — Mrs. Elaine Dobbins, John Cannon and Reginald Clegg.

The other two are former councillor and former Crofton postmaster Stan Dyke and Chemainus resident Thomas E. Kay. Completing another term this year is Reeve Donald Morton who decided to seek re-election. So far no one has come forward to contest the reeve-

Liquor In Car, Curfew for Youth

NANAIMO — In police court Monday morning Ernest Andrew Payne, 18, Nanaimo, was given a nine-month suspended sentence for contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Payne was picked up by the RCMP Friday night in a car with seven other people, most of them juveniles, and liquor was seized at the same time.

Payne, a tree planter with Crown Zellerbach was also placed on a two-month curfew for the next two months.

Rezoning Given Approval

PORT ALBERNI — Rezoning for the proposed Canada Safeway store complex at 10th and Bedford received approval Monday night from city council. It also was given a favorable report from the town planning committee.

Construction of the $600,000 project is expected to begin shortly.

The joint amalgamation committee announced appointment of a sub-committee to prepare specifications for a new ambulance to be used by Alberni and Port Alberni and recommended tenders be called as soon as they are ready.

Missing Boy Comes Home

A five-year-old boy went missing for about four hours in the Dallas Road area Monday.

Christopher Keays, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Keays, 123 Olive, went missing from the St. James kindergarten, Oswego Street, at 11:30 a.m.

Police began a search of the area, including the beach along Dallas Road.

However, at 3:40 p.m., Christopher returned home—unharmed.

CAMPBELL RIVER—A delegation of mothers will take a petition to Highways Minister Gaglardi and Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell protesting the hazards to pedestrians on the Island Highway between Willow Point and Campbell River.

ALTERNATE ROUTE

The meeting unanimously agreed to send the delegation and petition and asked for an alternate route to bypass the waterfront and residential area at once. A reduction in the speed limit, with radar checks, was proposed as a temporary measure.

MONEY NEEDED

Reeve Jack Lee told the meeting that if the area was going to progress, the money was required for policing and other needs.

General manager of the Elk Falls mill, H. Hall, said his company was being singled out. The firm paid $870,000 in taxes this year, he said, of which the district municipality received $113,000.

"Now they want to tax us $38,000 more," he said.

T. A. Fraser, also with Elk Falls, said this would be taken very seriously into consideration "if we are planning expansion in the area."

Mr. Hall said other industries would consider very carefully before locating in the area. If the tax goes through.

No Truth in Report Of Store Addition

There is not a shred of truth to a report that Woodward's Stores will soon start a $2,500,000 addition to its Port Alberni shopping centre, store manager James Sklaner said in Victoria Monday night.

Bennett Due In Court

Premier Bennett will appear in court Thursday to face preliminary examination in a slander suit brought against him by G. E. P. Jones, former B.C. purchasing agent.

The pre-trial examination for discovery will be conducted in private by Tom Berger, counsel for Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones launched the suit against the premier in Vancouver Supreme Court last March. The tentative date for trial there is Dec. 20.

In July, Mr. Jones filed a statement of claim in which he alleged that Mr. Bennett slandered him during a Social Credit Association meeting in Victoria on March 6. Mr. Jones was removed from the office of purchasing commission chairman on March 22.

Trust Companies 'Invited Catastrophe'

TORONTO (CP)—Trust companies were invited a "national catastrophe" when they refused to help British Mortgage and Trust Co. out of its financial troubles last summer, Harold Lawson, former caretaker president of British Mortgage, said Monday.

He told a meeting of the Canadian Club of Toronto if the Stratford, Ont., trust company had gone under after it suffered capital losses in the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. in June a general panic could have started among bank and trust depositors.

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Air Force jets blasted two Soviet-made missile sites northwest of Hanoi Monday, hitting one missile while it was still on the launching pad, a military spokesman announced.

In the ground fighting, a large force of Viet Cong guerrillas took a pounding from land, sea and air in an attack Monday on a South Vietnamese ranger headquarters on the central coast. By nightfall, with their dead scattered around the area, the enemy force pulled back. (See Page 22.)

SITE DESTROYED

One of the missile sites, 34 miles northwest of Hanoi, was destroyed, the spokesman said. A huge sheet of fire flashed across the site where the missile was hit by the launching pad.

At the other installation, 41 miles northwest of the North Vietnamese capital, radar equipment was destroyed.

HEAVY FIRE

The surface-to-air missile sites were the 16th and 17th struck by U.S. planes since July. The spokesman said the pilots encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, but returned safely.

MASS MEET THURSDAY

By BARRY JOHNSON

A mass meeting of all trade unionists—during normal working hours—has been called by a general strike co-ordinating committee of the Victoria Labor Council.

The plan to call the meeting was formulated at a meeting of the committee Monday at Union Centre.

It calls for all Greater Victoria trade unionists to attend a mass meeting beginning at 9 a.m. Thursday, the day marking the beginning of the 48-hour strike being urged by the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Committee chairman John Schibli, organizing chairman of the labor council and a member of the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union, said the meeting is to "explain the issues involved in the oil strike."

When it was suggested that if workers were at the meeting, they would not be at their jobs, Mr. Schibli said, "That is the inference."

The mass walkout in support of Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' fight for protection against layoffs due to automation, has been denounced as illegal by government and industry leaders.

The federation has had mixed success in its promotion of the mass walkout. Some unions have said they will not support the strike, several are known to be wavering and many are still undecided.

The 11,000-member B.C. Teamsters Council said it has decided "not to participate in any illegal strike action."

At the same time, the union declared it would not "haul, handle or use" any petroleum products, thereby assuring stoppage of all major trucking in the province if the strike materializes.

Victoria Local 1-118 of the International Woodworkers of America said it would support the strike. "Either we stand idly by and watch an affiliated union be destroyed... or we take a stand."

"We stand on the side of the oil workers."

Robinson Admits Slaying

By GORDON DODD

David Leonard Robinson answered "guilty" Monday when asked how he pleaded to a charge of non-capital murder at Victoria Assizes, thus ending the prospects of a two-week trial for which 56 Crown witnesses had been assembled.

The nude, bound body of schoolgirl Susan Freschi, 14, was found in bush country behind the Six Mile House beer parlor May 12.

PANEL DISMISSED

Mr. Justice George Gregory dismissed the 44-member jury panel after the plea of guilty was entered and adjourned the trial until 11 a.m. today at the request of Crown prosecutor William McIntyre.

Mr. McIntyre will relate the circumstances of the case and Alan Bigelow will appear for Robinson, after which Mr. Justice Gregory is expected to pass sentence.

LESSER CHARGE

The 24-year-old janitor had been committed for trial on a charge of capital murder, which carries the death penalty, but only the lesser charge was read to him Monday as he stood smartly attired in a suit, white shirt and dark tie in the prisoner's box behind counsel Alan Bigelow.

Robinson, a married man, had been in custody for the killing since May 26, with the exception of two days of freedom at the end of September. Then, he and 19-year-old fellow prisoner Stanley Heron escaped from Colquitz Jail.

FLED JAIL

A key was smuggled into the jail, enabling the two men to flee through a padlocked fire escape.

As a result, a big-scale search was mounted, extending to the mainland, before the dirty, dishevelled twosome were trapped late on the third night of their escape under Craigflower Bridge.

Robinson got four months for escaping, Heron nine months. That was on Sept. 25.

Janitor Fourth in Canada To Plead Guilty to Murder

It is a rare event in Canada for a man to plead guilty to murder, giving up his right to trial.

David Leonard Robinson's admission at the outset of his assize appearance was only the fourth time in Canadian history such a plea had been taken, the third in B.C., according to Cecil Clark, former commissioner of B.C. police and local author of many articles on criminal history.

Normally, an automatic plea of not guilty is entered and a jury is called upon to decide the issue.

Mr. Clark says the first time a man pleaded guilty to the charge in Canada was at the turn of this century. A Chinese, Yip Luck, confessed to the axe-slaying of Steveston Chief of Police Charles Main, and was hanged.

In fact, he narrowly escaped lynching, Mr. Clark recalls.

The public were so angered by what he had done to their police chief, who had been merely inquiring about some stolen carpenter's tools, that Yip Luck had to be whisked from his prison on Lulu Island to New Westminster.

Sixty-five-year-old Arthur Cunningham was also hanged. In 1922, he pleaded guilty at his trial to shooting dead a 72-year-old pensioner in a shack at Endako, 100 miles west of Prince George, for the sake of a small monetary gain.

Cunningham's victim was found shot in the back and frozen stiff outside the shack. Cunningham had previously been suspected of murder at Jasper, but on that occasion the court could not find sufficient evidence to convict him.

Mr. Clark says the other case, where a plea of guilty was entered to murder, was in Ontario around 1935.

The charge of non-capital murder, which does not carry the death penalty, was not in existence at the time any of these pieces of criminal history occurred. Thus Robinson is the first in Canada to plead guilty to it.

B.C. Village For Sale

100 MILE HOUSE (CP)—Lord Cecil, the only man in British Columbia to own an entire village, has put it up for sale.

Lord Cecil, 56, has offered to sell 100 Mile House in the B.C. Cariboo to its leaseholders.

There were reports the leaseholders thought the asking prices were too high. Lord Cecil said in an interview Sunday they were set by professional appraisers on the basis of current market values.

Lord Cecil's family has owned the square mile on which the village of 1,200 stands since 1912, when his father, the Marquis of Exeter, bought it.

Lord Cecil lives at 100 Mile House, where he is bishop of a religious organization called the Order of Emissaries of the Divine Light. 100 Mile House is 180 miles north-northeast of Vancouver.

Lord Cecil said Monday he agreed years ago to sell the village to its inhabitants once 100 Mile House was incorporated under the B.C. Municipal Act. It was so incorporated this year.

Toys Provide Key To Kinsmen Bingo

If you have an attic you haven't sacked for a while, or a little girl newly turned too big for dolls, you can help brighten Christmas in a material way for Victoria's poor.

The Kinsmen's Club again this year is joining The Daily Colonist to help turn the toys of Christmas past into cash for the destitute this Christmas.

The Kinsmen are holding their 3rd annual bingo Dec. 12 at the Arena. As well as the big $10,000 bingo, they'll be handing out about 30 turkeys to lucky ticket-holders.

All you need to hold a ticket is bring a toy and hand it in at the door.

The toys—hundreds were contributed last year—will be auctioned to Christmas shoppers later by Maynard and Sons.

The cash goes to The Daily Colonist 500 Fund to provide a cash Christmas present to the hardest-pressed families in the Greater Victoria area.
